LATE 1820's

prior to 1809 have not been preserved. On the 3d of April, that year, the officers elected were John Conrey, John Sargent, and Nathan Morgan, Trustees; Lemuel Stephenson, Clerk; William Fee, Treasurer; Israel Joslin and Edward Sapp, Constables; Alexander Seaton and John Debruler, Overseers of the Poor; Adam Fisher and Alexander Buchanan, Fence-Viewers; Israel Joslin, Lister and House Appraiser; Edward Sapp, House Appraiser; and William Dickson and John Aldridge, Road Supervisors.

One of the records of former years has been transcribed into this book, as follows:

"STATE OF OHIO,
CLEMONT CO.

"To any constable in the township of Washington, Greeting:
"You are hereby commanded to warn Andrew Trees, Jr., to leave the township and remove to his last place of residence, for we are determined not to give him any support in this township.
"Given under our hands, as Overseers of the Poor, this 20th day of September, 1805.

"N. B.—Of this warrant make legal service and duly return to the clerk."

"THOMAS JONES, [L.S.]
A German name. [L.S.]

For the next twenty years a number of similar notices were served, among the parties warned being several colored men. From 1810, for the next dozen years, is given a list of names of those selected as jurors. Prior to 1812 these were grand jurors: William Fee, Joseph McKibben, James Simmons, Richard Manning, John Lowe, Joshua Pigman, Richard Lemaster, Martin Miller, Israel Joslin, Lemuel Stephenson, Edward Scott, and Daniel Camerer.

From 1828 to 1848 the records of Washington have not been preserved, but for the remaining years a list of officers has been compiled, as follows:

George Gregg

GEORGE GREGG.

The Gregg family, so historic in the annals of Ohio, Kentucky, and Indiana, is of Quaker ancestry, and go back to a splendid lineage in England. About the year 1792, John Gregg and his wife Sarah, whose maiden name was also Gregg, moved from their home in Greene Co., Pa., to Kentucky. Their children were four sons—Aaron, Samuel, John, and George—and five daughters—Ann Ruth, married to Felix Hamont; one married to John Harlan, near Lebanon, Mo.; Margaret, married to Robert Buchanan; Sarah, married to John Fee; and Hannah, married to Capt. John O. Hamilton, of Gallatin Co., Ky. In the spring of 1793 or '94, John Gregg, with William Buchanan, came over from Kentucky and built a log cabin on what is now the site of Noville, the first erected in Clermont. Those two pioneers had contracted for a thousand-acre tract of land, but in the next or succeeding year, finding that they had put up their cabin and located on a different survey from the one they had actually bargained for in order to avoid trouble, they gave up their claim and returned to Kentucky. Shortly after this John Gregg died, but his wife remained in Kentucky with her children and lived to a good old age. She was a beautiful woman of light frame, weighing only about ninety pounds, and would come from Kentucky on horseback and travel alone through the hazy woods to Lebanon and see her children, and return unaccompanied by any one.

Samuel Gregg, son of John, came over from Kentucky to learn the tannery business with Mr. Murray, who operated a large establishment on Indian Creek as early as the year 1802. Samuel died about eighteen months after his arrival, when his brother George came over in 1808, took his place, learned the trade, took an interest in the tannery, and soon after bought out Mr. Sneddy a whole concern. George Gregg was born in Greene Co., Pa., near Reynoldsville, March 25, 1790. He came to Washington township a poor boy. With no patrimony, he worked, bought a few notes for most of the purchase price. He married Sarah Fee, daughter of Thomas Fee, one of the earliest pioneers of Clermont. From this union were born Wm. S. Gregg, of Moscow; Sarah Ann, who died in her youth; Caroline S., wooded young; Elizabeth, married to F. J. Phillips; Eliza M., married to David Fenwick; Lamin, married to Hon. John Johnston, a prominent lawyer of Cincinnati; Laura F., married to R. Kirtell; Jose E., unmarried; and the late George W. Gregg, an attorney of Batavia, Ohio, who was the seventh child. George Gregg died Jan. 12, 1892, and his wife, Sarah, Jan. 1, 1872. He was out in the war of 1812 for over two months, and until his company was disbanded owing to an overplus of recruits at that particular time. He operated his famous tannery for forty-three years and up to 1855. People brought from all parts of the country their hides to his establishment to be tanned; from White Oak, Georgetown, Williamsville, and other distant points, and from White Oak especially, many deer-skins came. The custom was to give half of a hide or skin for tanning the other half. George Gregg was a very systematic business man, of rare critical judgment, and undimmed energy. He would work hard all day and then take horseback to Batavia of nights to transact business, return before morning, and work all the next day.

He was an honest, Christian man in all his intercourse with his fellow-men, and his labors for the Methodist Episcopal Church were unexcelled by those of any other layman in the county. About 1823 or '24 the first "Gregg camp-meeting" was established on his place, and they were held for many years thereafter. His stables, his pasture, his fields, and feed were held open free of all charge for those meeting, and for ever half a century his residence and home was the hospitable place where the itinerant circuit rider and preacher always tarried. He united with the Methodist Episcopal Church after his marriage, and labored with unceasing devotion in it till his death. He removed to Moscow in 1848, but continued active in business as long as he lived. While a thorough business man of unflagging industry he possessed a happy vein of humor, and carried his boyish feelings of sympathy and kindness into his old age. Home was a sweet place to him, and there in his happy family he accumulated a large estate in personal and real property, but in all his life of sharp business contact with the world he ever maintained his honor, and his life was as perfect and blameless as ever falls to man to enjoy. The impress of his good work in his journey on earth lives in the community, and has largely aided in shaping the

SARAH GREGG.

SARAH GREGG.

Sarah (Fee) Gregg, a noble Christian pioneer mother, was born June 17, 1795, emigrated to near Augusta, Ky. In 1796, in fact, Thomas, eldest son, was born. She was a daughter of Thomas and Nancy (Reharr) Baskin Gregg, where he resided temporarily, and in 1799 removed to V. Ky. but in 1800 located near Felicity, where he had purchased the Dry and four hundred acres, on part of which town is situated. He had two sons, six daughters, William, who died out Felicity, and was early in the 1840s; Eliza; Eliza; Eliza; Eliza; Eliza; and Eliza. His father's name was all these seven Fee brothers were all men of note, and from them have many of the leading professional and business men of the county. To Nancy (Reharr) Fee were born six sons: William, a captain in the war who died at Urbana on his way home; John, also in that war, and who died after his return, from disease contracted in the service; Eliza, who died to John Buchanan; Sarah, married to George Gregg; Elizabeth, married to John Buchanan; Sarah, married to Dr. Leavitt T. Fene. No four sons or more widely known in Clermont than these four sons, who were the highest social positions of the county. Their brother, Robert Fee, a pioneer and great camp-meeting ground was more famous in those days than any other place of a similar character in America, on account of the powerings of God's spirit upon the listening thousands that would annual gate in its peaceful groves. This noble woman was a regular communicant church sixty-five years, and died in great peace and comfort Jan. 1, 1872, lived over fourscore years a life of rare Christian excellence. She was helpful to her husband, and her sainted character exerted a powerful influence on her children, and her hospitable home was the constant home of the and on her husband's farm was the "Gregg camp-meeting ground," in an old and two different eras, where for many years thousands were entertained, and performed great good in the vineyard of her maker. Her convictions, and her great sense, believing it to be one of the chief duties under Divine direction in making the world happier and better. She was her home, and most dearly was she loved by her children who grew up under her benign and sweet precepts. The oldest child, William S. Gregg, educated at Augusta College, and a man of brilliant scholastic culture, and deserved popularity in the community, reads Gregg mission in Moscow, with two of his sisters, Sarah (Fee) Gregg family that was early and honorably associated with Clermont's history, and into one of equal renown. She lived to see religion assume the lead in the life of the world, and the county she came to when a little girl became peopled and dotted all over with beautiful edifices where her loyal Saviour was praised and worshipped. Her marriage with George Gregg was most singularly blessed. In many a household the joint memory of this good woman is held in almost sacred veneration, and many sweet associations treasured up connecting her as the link between the past and present, and as the sainted pioneer mother in Israel, whose remembrance cheer and refreshes the latter spirit.

ent out in the war of 1812, and did valiant service in the adopted country. He married a daughter of the Miller and moved to Cincinnati. One of the Miller children was a daughter of one of the Kains, and distinguished himself as a physician and a minister of the gospel. He was the very first settlers in the Concord neighborhood. Leonard Raper and his wife, Temperance, whose name was Holly. Leonard Raper served as a soldier in the British army during the Revolution, and was among the first to be surrendered by Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown. He remained in Virginia several years he migrated to the north and found a place of abode in Williamsburg. He was a man of good qualities, and was one of the first settlers in the township. His death occurred March 18, 1841, at the age of eighty-one years, and that of Temperance, Nov. 28, 1841, at the age of seventy-seven years. Their four daughters married into well-known families. Elizabeth, John Kain; Margaret, John Randall; Mary, Thomas Foster; and Mary, James Kain. Of the children of Leonard Raper and his wife, Holly, only one attained more than ordinary distinction. Holly and his wife, Win. H. became a Methodist minister of wide celebrity. A sketch of his life and other part of this book. The other sons, Samuel and John, lived in the southern part of the township.

The fact that Williamsburgh was the first county in the State in which many people resided there a short time before the Revolution, and homes in other parts of the county. There, every day, came many worthy families, whose history would be interesting if space allowed its being detailed. Many of the sons of Williamsburgh families attained to eminence in the ministry. Of these Revs. Foster, Raper, and Swing are noted in short sketches. Others became ministers were Enoch G. West and John Jenkins, of the Methodist Church; and A. S. Jenkins, George Hageman, of the Presbyterian Church. The early settlement of the township wild animals was numerous, especially in the Elklick hills. Bears, wolves, and deer abounded, and a few buffaloes were seen as late as 1805. James Bunton counted nine on one occasion as he was returning to his home in Williamsburgh. Panthers were somewhat dangerous, and caused much of the property of the county to be lost by their depredations. About 1825 a large number of the people removed to the house of Samuel Ely. James than himself, to go out to kill the animal. They took their father's gun and started out in the darkness to find the animal, and had not gone twenty steps until they came upon him. James fired at the panther, which raised a terrible howl, causing the children to beat a retreat, and the animal fled to the hills. In the township were several bear-wallows and deer-licks, which those animals frequented, and enabled the skillful hunter to kill them in large numbers. After 1830 the bears became very scarce, only a few remaining in the old haunts. The last one was killed by John Peterson, a hunter of skill and daring. He was returning to his home on a moonlight evening, when he saw a large black object sitting in the road not far from his house. He called his dogs and they came at once and had a lively tussle with the bear, which escaped across the East Fork. Nothing more was seen or heard of the animal until the fall of the following year, when Mr. Peterson was hunting wild turkeys in the Elklick Hills, when his dogs started up a bear, which made a sudden attack on the hunter. He aimed at him, but his rifle missed fire, and to escape the onslaught of the dogs the bear ran up a tree. Again Peterson fired, wounding the animal, which slid down the tree and attacked him. The dogs fought him off, and Bruin once more escaped. About a year later the tracks of a bear were seen, and a party of men was organized to hunt him down. An exciting chase followed for five or six miles, when the bear was killed by Mr. Peterson, who saw from the marks it bore that it was the same animal that he had tried to kill on two previous occasions.

PROPERTY-HOLDERS IN 1826.

In the appended list appear the names of citizens of Williamsburgh who held real and personal property in 1826. To the names of those who paid no tax on personal property is prefixed an asterisk, to indicate that they were probably non-residents of the township at that period.

No doubt the great influx of settlers brought many t in a number of instances, owing to some personal feelin their coming were ordered to leave.

THE HIGHWAYS AND CEMETERIES.
Prior to the organization of the county a road was su veyed from Newtown to Williamsburgh by John Donnel assisted by Daniel Kain and Robert McKinney; and o the 24th of November, 1797, the Court of Quarter Session of Hamilton County ordered that it be established as

CIVIL ORGANIZATION.
The principal records of the township from its organization in 1801 to 1818 have been lost. On the 6th of April of the last-named year, at the regular township-meeting, Thomas S. Foote was chosen chairman, Jacob Huber and Holly Raper, judges, and Daniel Kain, clerk; whereupon the following persons were elected: Nicholas Sinks, William Hunter, and Thomas Kain, Trustees; Daniel Kain, Township Clerk; John Earhart, Lister and Appraiser; John Earhart, Treasurer; Isaac Foster, Vere Royce, George Ellis, and David Earhart, Constables; Job Stockton and Robert Tweed, Overseers of the Poor; Ramoth Bunton and Jacob Mason, Fence-Viewers; Phineas Thomas and Samuel Moorhead, Road Supervisors.
At that time David Morris was one of the justices of the peace of the township.

Similar notices were served in the following half-a-dozen years upon Sarah Smith, Deborah Gibbs, Benjamin Holton, Sarah Mahan, Elizabeth Mahan, Eleanor Pagan, Charles
Moore and Nancy, his wife, Lydia Williams, Sarah Noble and her children. It was probably a settled policy not to allow those incapable of supporting themselves to obtain a habitation in the township, for the poor-fund many years in the early history of Tate was a mere pittance amounting in 1832 to only $65. In later periods, however, the action the township towards dependent persons has been char-terized by charity and liberality.

THE PUBLIC THOROUGHFARES.

Mention is made of the early roads in a chapter relating to the proceedings of the county commissioners, to which the reader is referred. The old State road, at present known as the Ohio turnpike, which passes through the township from east to west, has from the first been the principal thoroughfare, its importance being shared only the Williamsburgh road, which intersects it, in its southern course, at the village of Bethel, through which it is known as Main Street. The latter road was located in 1801, as the part from Bethel to Felicity became a free turnpike in 1870. With a course almost parallel with the Ohio turnpike is the Cincinnati and Portsmouth Railroad, which road bed has been graded through the township, and which will, no doubt, soon be completed to permit the running trains. Its completion will give the people of this part the county easy communication to Cincinnati. A stage will be provided at Bethel and another at Bantam.

Considerable interest has been manifested in the improvement of the highways of Tate, a large amount of work being annually bestowed upon the roads. In 1815 the township was divided into ten districts for highway purposes, as follows:

- No. 1.—Beginning at Thomas E. Allen's, on Clover Creek; thence on a direct line to include Ephraim Eas-bridge, Knigh Mitchell, and Aaron Leonard. No. 2.— Beginning at Thomas E. Allen's; thence including John Davis on Poplar and Thomas Ogden in Bullskin Creeks. No. 3.—Beginning at John Davis'; thence including Oakley Vanosdol, Sr., and Oakley Vanosdol, Jr., William Crouch, and all the Wells'. No. 4.—Beginning at William Crouch's; thence, including James Davis, Silas Huntington, and John Boggess south to the township line. No. 5.—Beginning at John Boggess'; thence to Levi Beck's, Michael Ellsberry's, and James Noble's to Sugar-
Tree Run, and up that stream to the township-line. No. 6.—
Beginning at Bethel, on the Twelve-Mile road thence, to include John West, James Noble, Michael Ells-berry, Levi Beck, in a direct line to the place of beginning.
No. 7.—Beginning at the Sixth District at Bethel thence to John West and James Noble, and down Sugar-

the township, including David Harper and James Denham.
No. 8.—Beginning at Thomas E. Allen's; thence in direct line to the Spring Branch; thence to Oakley Vanosdol's; thence to William Crouch, James David, Silas Hunington, etc.; thence north to the township-line and to the place of beginning.
No. 9.—Beginning where the State road crosses Sugar-Tree-Run; thence to include William Simonds'; thence to

SCOUTS, SPIES, AND MILITAMEN

Now let's turn our attention to the other MCQUEEN boys who spent their time around Mingo Bottom and the frontier borders. Pennsylvania's first militia draft law, enacted in 1777, required that every man between the ages of 18 and 53, capable of bearing arms, was to serve two months of active duty. Each Pennsylvania county was divided into eight battalion districts, which were then subdivided into eight companies. These companies were then broken down into eight classes. Men drew lots for the classes in which they were to serve. These classes were called up by rotation for two months of active duty. Typically, all first classes in all battalions for the county were called first. Then, all second classes for the county in all battalions were called next. When the eighth class was reached the rotation started over again. In this way a county would have eight classes serving duty at one time. (A refusal to turn out for militia duty resulted in a fine. Exemptions could be obtained, but they were few and costly.)¹

The MCQUEEN brothers appear on a number of undated militia rolls from Washington Co PENN found in the Pennsylvania Archives. I chose to include all variations of names which I found in the Archives because information in the Archives, as old as the books were, was typed by someone who was looking on the original handwritten rosters and documents. Thus, the archives contain original source information but not the original documents. This leaves a wide margin of error in the transcription of names. A muster roll of Capt. Robert MILLAR's Company of Militia in Washington Co PENN lists John MCQUEEN in the 4th class and Thomas MCQUEEN in the 8th company.² Miller's Fort, or Blockhouse, was located on the waters of Dutch Fork, in later Donegal township, Washington County.³ John MCQUEEN also served under Capt. Thomas RANKIN and is listed on his return of the 4th and 7th class from Washington Co PENN.⁴ He is listed under Capt Robert SHERNEY's Company as John QUEEN.⁵

Rolls with dates are more useful although they are fewer in number. John MCQUEEN (listed again as QUEEN) was mustered into service on the 19 Sep 1781 into the 7th class 5th company in the class roll of Capt Thomas RANKIN's Company of Foot, 4th Battalion militia, Washington Co PENN. In the 8th Company was Capt Edmund BAXTER, Lt George BROWN, and Ensign Thomas WELLS.⁶ The whole of the 4th Battalion was commanded by Lt. Col John MARSHAL of Hopewell Township which embraced the present townships of Cross Creek, Jefferson and Mt. Pleasant (map pg 52).⁷ Marshall had a blockhouse, known as Marshall's Blockhouse, located in the Cross Creek township. I took notes (but failed to write source) that this blockhouse was never attacked by Indians so far as is known, which was quite a feat in those days.

Concerning actual service in the regular army, I find Daniel MCQUEEN and John MCQUEEN listed as Non-Commissioned Officers & Privates of the 4th Pennsylvania Regiment of the Continental Line, along with John MCQUEEN (serving 4 Mar 1777-1781), James MCLEAN (serving 12 Jan 1777-1781), Thomas MCLEAN (no dates of service), Thomas SAPPINGTON (serving 1781) and James BAXTER (serving 4 May 1778-1781). I have no idea if these are our people or not, but it looks pretty suspicious.⁸ I also find Daniel MCQUEEN on a muster roll for James WRIGHT's Company of Youghiogeny Militia in Actual Service for Sept 1778, the whole of which

The unfriendly situation between the Indians and the settlers escalated to a furious pitch between the years 1770-1774. Minor conflicts turned into major conflicts so that by 1774 it was no longer a question of "Would there be a war?" but rather "When would war occur?" Joshua describes one such conflict that happened as he was returning home from "a raising," or cabin building.

While at Holyday's Cove, going up one day from Greathouse's, 2 miles below, to the Fort, 2 of us passed along, and another came after, about 3/4 of a mile behind. And there was a little snow on the ground, we could see where 2 Indians lay on the ground, and rested their guns in the snow, on a log, and fired. We heard the guns when we got to the fort. They were afraid to fire on 2 of us. Had been down to help at a raising. Last of March, or 1st of April, and a little dutchman behind, the other man about 100 or 150 yards behind. We passed as near as 10 yards to the white oak top cut down, where they lay. It was so soon in the spring, we had no thought of Indians, and thought it was some of our men shooting. . . .¹⁰

Despite the ever present Indian threat just across the Ohio River the MCQUEENS and others resided on their claims until late April 1774 when the massacre of the friendly Indian Logan's family plunged the frontier once again into a border war. History has laid primary responsibility for this ghastly affair on Daniel GREATHOUSE but has not exonerated other participants, including John SAPPINGTON, Joshua BAKER, the COXES, and the TOMLINSONS. It appears likely that Joshua MCQUEEN was involved as well, as you shall later see from the facts.

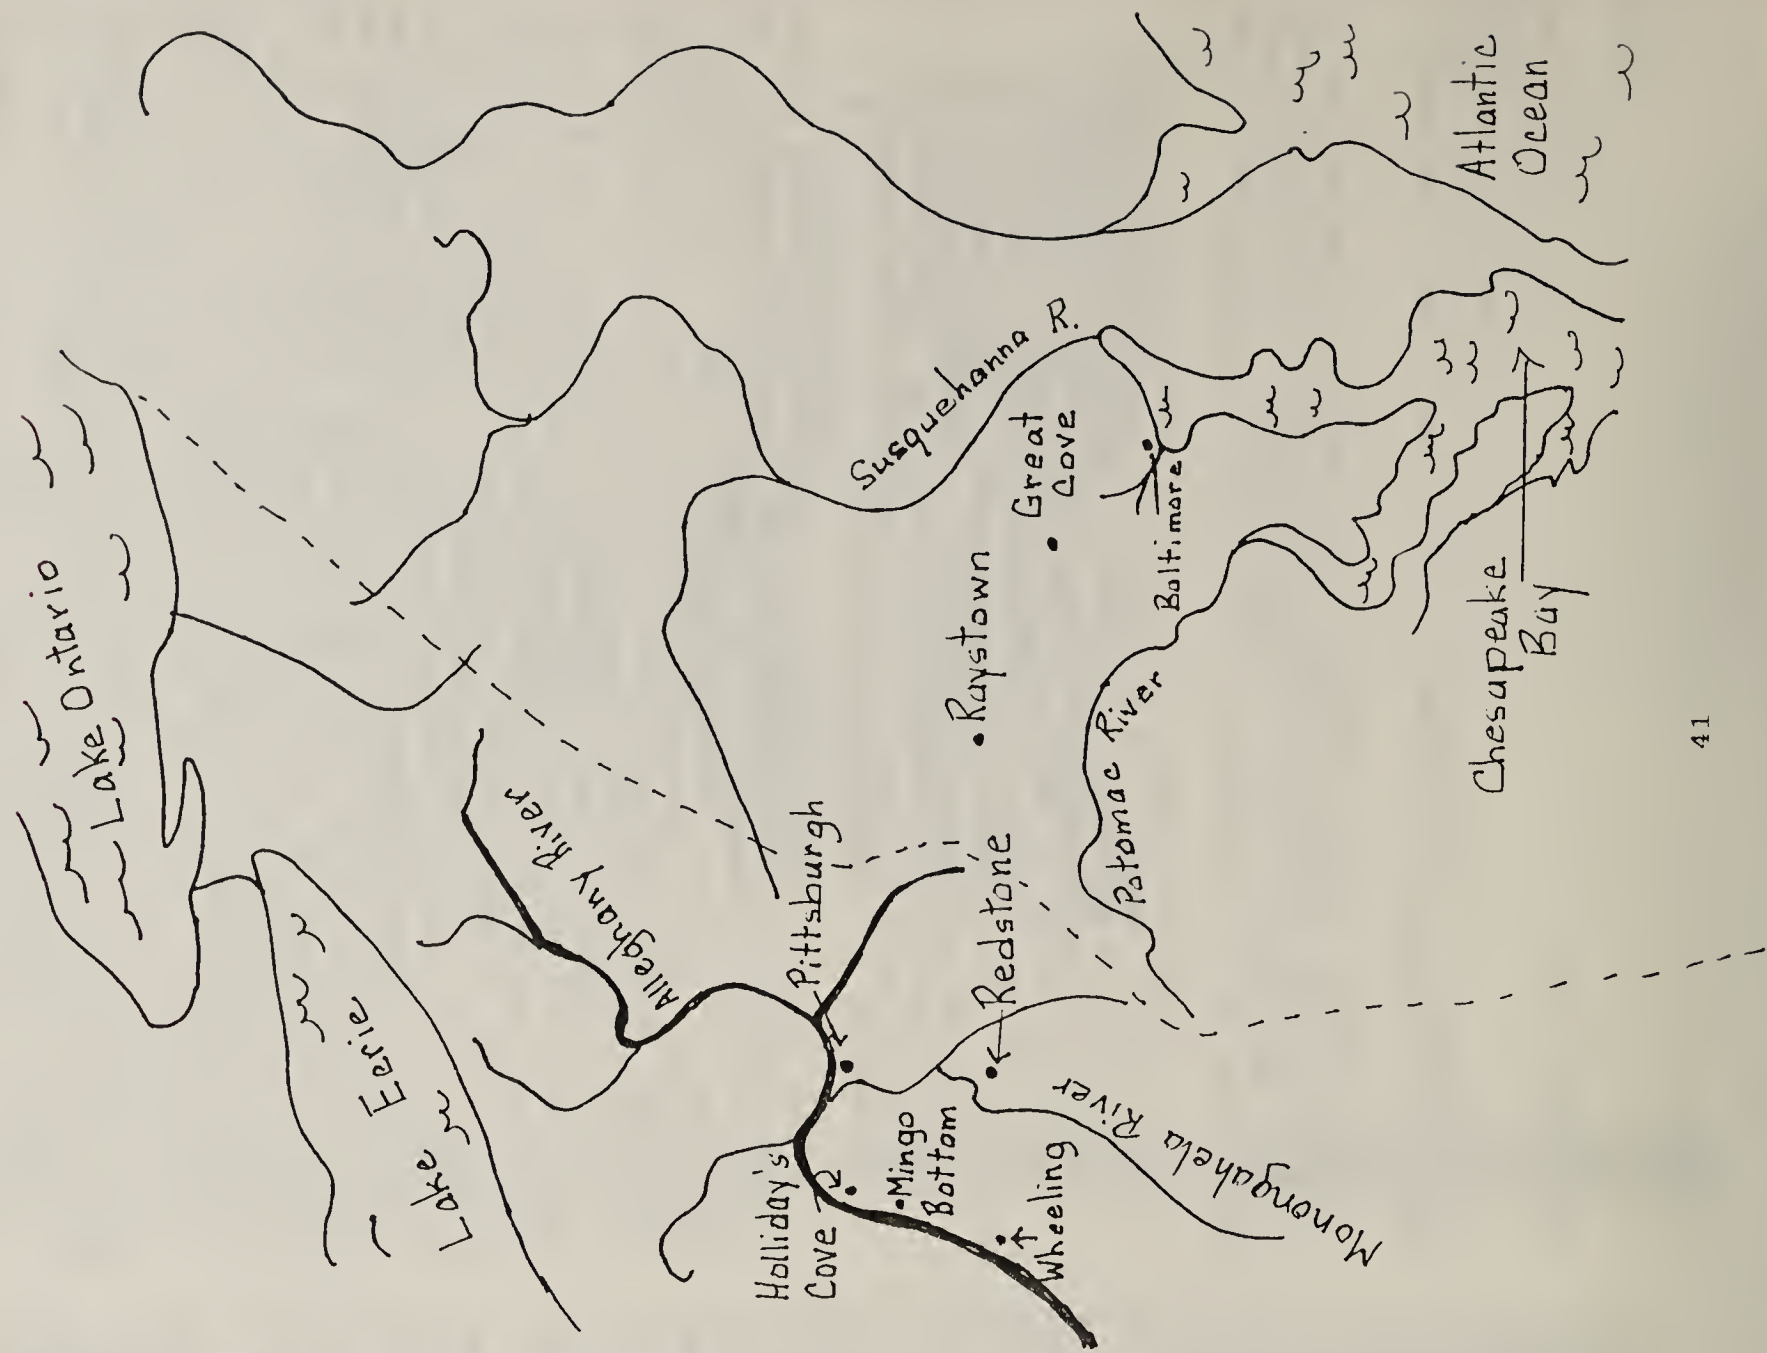

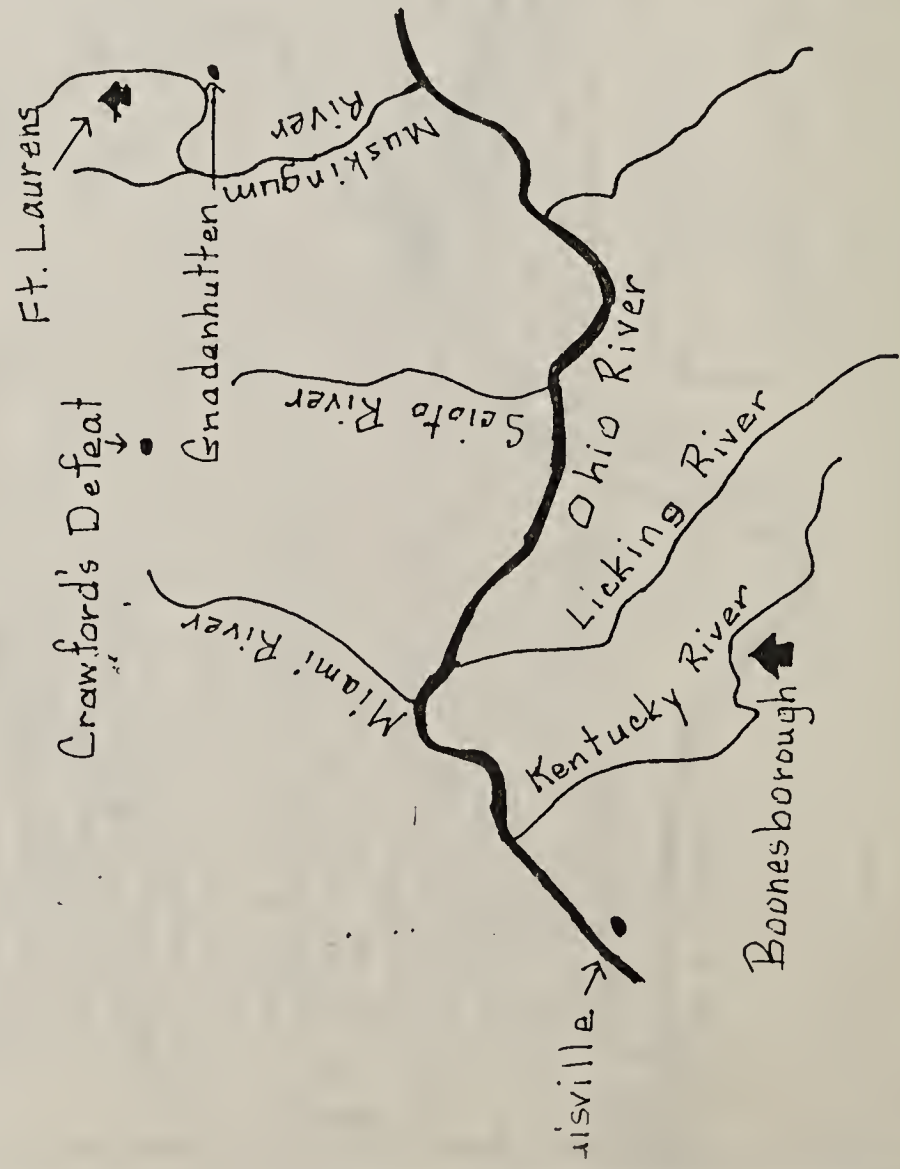

Around the end of April Daniel GREATHOUSE gathered a group of men at Joshua BAKER's cabin in Baker's Bottom which was close to the mouth of Yellow Creek and about twenty miles from Holyday's Cove and Mingo Bottom (map pg 52).¹¹ A small group of Mingo Indians had erected a hunting camp directly across the Ohio River from Baker's place. The Indians frequently made friendly trips across the river to acquire liquor from BAKER and to visit, although Baker's nasty habit of selling rum to the Indians displeased government officials. The chief of this small tribe was Logan, a well-known friend of the whites who had worked hard at maintaining peaceful relations between both factions for the last ten to twenty years. He had recently discouraged his own warriors from declaring war on the whites telling them that such a war would only result in greater losses and less gains to the Indians.

All historical accounts indicate that the mastermind behind the bloody massacre was Daniel GREATHOUSE, son of Harman GREATHOUSE.¹² After first visiting the Indian camp and ascertaining that the numbers were too large for an open attack, GREATHOUSE proposed to invite the Indians over to BAKER's for a drink, to get them drunk, and then attack. Most of the 20 frontiersmen had gathered because they believed BAKER's family was in real danger and were determined to defend their friend. Upon hearing GREATHOUSE's plan most decided against the dirty deed, but while they didn't take part, they didn't leave either.

Thanks to John SAPPINGTON's deposition, given in 1800, we know at least his version of how events started that day. Many depositions exist concerning the external circumstances of the massacre and who was involved, but there are no others which offer any insight into the internal circumstances. Of course, one

Nothing more happened until June 6 when the guides conducted the army to the 3 of the Moravian villages on one of the upper branches of Sandusky River. Instead of finding Indians and plunder as expected, however, the frontiersmen found 7 desolation and desertion. The Indians had left for the Scioto River sometime before. Only high grass and a few abandoned huts remained at the village site. volunteers, typically, became impatient to return home.²⁵

Field officers and captains held a council and after much discussion decided army would march one day longer in the direction of upper Sandusky. If they ild not reach a town within the next day then a hasty retreat home would begin. sooner had the council adjourned than an express arrived with information that a ge body of advancing Indians was spotted three miles in front of the troops. army immediately began moving forward to meet the reconnoitering party coming and proceeded forward a short distance until they came in view of the Indians were hastening to occupy a small body of woods in the midst of an extensive n. The battle began here with heavy fire from both sides and continued until itfall. During the afternoon's conflict three frontiersmen were killed and aral wounded.²⁶

The Indians made no attack during the daylight but did seem to be increasing r numbers by the hours. That morning a council of officers decided that a ttime retreat was the only means of saving the army and so spent their day ing the dead and making preparations to carry off the wounded. Although all ers agreed to a retreat a difference of opinion arose concerning the best od of retreat. Many of the frontiersmen believed that the best and safest way etreat was to break off into small parties and make their way home in different ctions, avoiding the route by which they came.²⁷

The Indians, aware of the intended retreat, attacked the army about sundown. he first few shots split through the air, many frontiersmen (it has been ated as much as one-third of the army) began hurrying off in different ctions from the main body, hoping the large body of Indians would follow the army and leave the smaller parties alone. What a costly miscalculation! Either part or all of George Brown's company split from the main body, ding James McQueen, Serg Jacob Bowman, and Samuel Nichols.²⁸ Thomas McQueen the main body as well, probably with Lt. Hamilton. For several days after the army's retreat the Indians were spread over the whole western country from Sandusky to the banks of the Ohio River pursuing and killing such straggling parties.²⁹

"When Crawford's Defeat was, George Brown would stay round hunting up for Bowman & others, & wouldn't come away. At last the Indians got his mare. The next day the Indians came on them, . . . (Brown's arm inside bone broken. Bowman. A mulatto man [belonging to one Richard Elson,) named Sam.) . . . in pursuit, & killed Bowman & Sam, shot Brown in the arm. But one of their horses came running along, & he was a light active fellow, he just sprung on him, and went off clear. Jas: McQueen kept following on behind Geo: Brown, his brother in law, to get on his mare, and at last he was separated from Bowman and the mulatto, & the Indians got so thick, he had to hide, & it was 8 or 10 days before he got in, and never would but that he jumped on a little fawn & caught it. Younger brother perished to death."³⁰

" . . . Bowman got killed Crawford's campaign. That campaign, my brother in law, Geo: Brown, got on the horse that came along, and cleared himself."³¹

The above passages have created more confusion among McQueen genealogists than any other in Joshua's interview. For many years I believed the passage to relate the escape of George Brown and the death of Joshua McQueen's younger brother, James McQueen. Others were not satisfied with the theory concerning James' death, although they couldn't offer any other explanations. I stuck by my conviction of the story until last year when I made connections with Daniel McQueen (who lives in Maryland), a descendant of James McQueen. Obviously James had not died because Daniel had information about him in Kentucky years after Crawford's Campaign. I had to adjust my theory. One thing was for certain, a younger McQueen brother must have perished in that campaign. I went back to militia records and found the name "Daniel McQueen" among the names of John, Thomas, James & Benjamin. Could this be the brother who was killed?

After much toil and weary work, I have come up with what seems to be the most plausible explanation. I must give credit to Daniel McQueen (Maryland), who took my information and Hermon Fagley's story about George Brown and came up with a different slant on the event. He suggested that perhaps James, not George, was separated from "Bowman and the mulatto man" and the Indians became so thick he had to hide for over a week before he could come in. We know George Brown had to hide because of the corroboration provided by his great grandson which is related on the next page. It is equally possible that James could have stayed gone that long as well, for the men straggled into the settlements off and on for two weeks after the defeat, as stated above. In this way, James caught the fawn as his brother states and probably ate it, since it would have been impossible for a man to ride a fawn. James then came on into the settlement, George caught the horse as Joshua states in two places, and the younger brother mentioned as "perishing to death" is another one belonging to James and Joshua McQueen. Could it have been Daniel? We'll probably never know for sure.

John McQueen must have retreated from Sandusky with the main army which arrived at Mingo Bottom with little difficulty in a matter of days.³² How horrible it must have been for Elizabeth (BERRY) McQueen and her daughter, Elizabeth (McQueen) Brown, to view the arriving men only to find out that all of their men were not returning home. Stragglers returned to the settlements off and on for weeks after the return of the main army.

They did serve in Capt William HOAGLAND's company from Washington and since all three brothers are found here I would imagine it must have campaign.¹⁰ It appears the MCQUEEN brothers were assigned to different and these classes rotated their tours of duty about every three months. brothers on different class schedules they staggered their militia duty not all gone from home at the same time, unless it was a campaign. Thomas Benjamin MCQUEEN, and James MCQUEEN all received depreciation pay as "per certificates" on file from Washington Co PENN. Others who also received soldiers were Hartley SAPPINGTON and Captain George BROWN.¹¹ Another from the Archives lists as Frontier Rangers from 1778-1783 in Washington NN Thomas MCQUEEN, John QUEEN, also a Benjamin MCLEEN and James MCLEEN and be Benjamin and James MCQUEEN. information is available on Thomas MCQUEEN II than on the other brothers. nsion application states he was living in Wheeling, Virginia (maps pg 40- en he was called into the service.¹³ (This is now West Virginia.) was a larger than normal gathering place for frontier families along the n line and was second only in importance to Fort Pitt.¹⁴ Despite the portance and strength, however, it's exposed location along the Ohio River xtremely susceptible to Indian attacks. During the American Revolution it at least two severe Indian attacks, one in 1777 and another in 1782.

-8 March 1782 Thomas took part in the Gnadenhuetten Massacre¹⁵ along the River under Captain Charles BILDERBACK from the County of Westmoreland, e barbarity of this expedition sent shockwaves across the frontier as despite the public's general hatred for Indians. One hundred to two n from the Monongahela River settlements left with intentions of the towns of the peaceful, Christian Moravian Indians who caused no white settlers. The settlers of Washington County had been especially with constant Indian depredations, and they generally assumed the to be the perpetrators. The peaceful Indians, however, were actually set e Shawnee Indians who knew the whites would retaliate swiftly for the expedition began with orders to destroy the houses and crops of the the Tuscarawas River. In addition, the peaceful Moravians were to be o Ft. Pitt in order to protect them from Indian warriors.¹⁶ As the line eaded toward the Tuscarawas River, however, the soldiers discovered the body of a Mrs. WALLACE impaled upon the sharpened trunk of a sapling. the mutilated corpse of her infant child. The WALLACE home had been by Indians a few days before the men left on this campaign, and the men became incensed with rage at this gruesome sight.

the militia first arrived at the Indian towns the Moravians were to see them and joyful at the prospect of being taken to Fort Pitt for . Soon after arrival, however, soldiers unfortunately discovered clothes articles from not only the WALLACE household but also others from County. Blind with rage, these men confined the Indians and held a war to decide their guilt and fate. Most men held the Moravians e because of the articles found in their possession. The record states, however, that very few men believed death to all the Indians was an appropriate punishment. Unfortunately, the voices of a few outweighed the voices of many and it was decided that the Moravian Indians were to be put to death. Hardly anyone considered the possibility that perhaps the Moravians were being set up by the Shawnee Indians (these settlers called them "Shawaneese") until it was too late.

The Moravians must have immediately sensed their doom. According to historical accounts, after the Indians were told of their fate they remarked they were Christians and therefore not afraid to die. Their preparations for death included singing hymns, praising God, and commanding their souls into his care. The next day, after being dragged with ropes about their necks to one of two slaughter houses, each was knocked down with a cooper's mallet before being tomahawked and scalped. When it was over about 88 men, women and children had been brutally murdered.¹⁷

According to Hermon FAGLEY, George BROWN was at this massacre as well. He was a minister by this time and was part of the small minority which was very much opposed to the decision to kill the Indians. He is said to have hid in the bushes as the Indians were being massacred that day.¹⁸

Reaction to the Moravian Massacre varied from place to place. Virginians were appalled and horrified that such a crime could befall the peaceful missionaries. Elsewhere however, especially in Pennsylvania, frontiersmen were barely awed at the occurrence and few spoke out against the massacre. Some felt the Indians "got what they deserved" and talk of a second invasion against the Indians began circulating soon afterwards. This massacre touched off a series of vicious Indian reprisals and raids which further fueled the pioneers' hatred for their red-skinned enemies. These raids ultimately led to the American reprisal and disaster known as Crawford's Campaign.

Crawford's Campaign was a tragedy for the MCQUEEN family as well as a disaster for the frontier settlements. Likely nothing this black had settled upon the family since the death of Thomas MCQUEEN I in 1763 and as far as the frontier was concerned, the year of 1782 had thus far proven itself as the very darkest. In later years it was referred to as "The Other Bloody Year" (the first one being in 1777). All of the MCQUEEN brothers except Joshua would participate, as well as George BROWN and others. On 14 May 1782 John QUEEN was ordered to rendezvous for service under Capt. Thomas RANKIN, 4th Battalion Washington Co PENN Militia.¹⁹ Thomas MCQUEEN II served under Capt Charles BILDERBACK and Lt Thomas HAMILTON. In his company was Harman GREATHOUSE.²⁰ George BROWN would serve as Capt of his own company from Washington Co PENN and in his company were Hartley SAPPINGTON, James MCQUEEN and Benjamin MCQUEEN.²¹

Between 20-24 May 1782 approximately 400 frontiersmen met at Mingo Bottom in preparation for the expedition against the Indians. Col. William CRAWFORD accepted command of the expedition with great reluctance, supposedly concerned about his ability to control the Virginia frontiersmen who were known for their lack of restraint and self-discipline.²²

On May 25 the army left the Mingo towns and began their 150 mile march to the Sandusky Indian towns unaware that they were already under surveillance by the enemy. Several days into the campaign the army stopped at an upper Moravian Indian town on the Muskingum river²³ where some men discovered two Indians a short distance from camp. As soon as the frontiersmen in camp heard news of the discovery more than half of the men rushed out in deliberate disobedience of Crawford's command to stay in camp. It is said that from that moment forward Col. CRAWFORD felt a presentiment of the defeat and disaster which soon followed.²⁴

the junction of the Cumberland and Tennessee Rivers.⁵ The trouble they experienced gives us an idea of the dangerous job they had chosen:

"... When we passed Fort Masac, they pursued us to get some of the flour of us, but didn't overtake us. We passed Fort Massac in the night. Learned of this pursuit afterwards. We had a heavy swivel on board, and 3 or 4 muskets for our defence. . . ."⁶

Joshua and TOMLINSON managed to stay far enough ahead of their pursuers they were not caught. They had muskets and a swivel, or cannon, so they had been prepared for trouble.

By the time Joshua reached Natchez, on the banks of the bluffs of the Mississippi River in present day Mississippi, he had travelled downriver a total of 1716 miles.⁷ In 1779 the Natchez settlement was relatively obscure and quiet except for the political turmoil of the time. (Natchez did not earn its reputation as the "nucleus of vice upon the Mississippi River" until after 1800.) In 1716 French settlers, with the help of the Natchez Indians, built Fort Rosalie. In 1729, however, those same Indians massacred the French settlers. The settlement was abandoned until the English rebuilt it in 1778, renaming it Fort Panmure.⁸

Joshua could not have picked a worse or more tumultuous time to arrive at Natchez and Ft. Panmure. In 1779 Spain declared war on Great Britain and Governor Bernardo de GALVEZ marched up the Mississippi River to take Manchac, Baton Rouge, and Natchez. Natchez lost its English leadership and on 21 September 1779 settlers in this area came under Spanish authority for the very first time. The English colonists living here were treated well and their lifestyles changed little, but because of the continuing rebellion in the colonies Tories soon began infiltrating the country.

Joshua arrived in Natchez in early April 1781 just after the English colonists carried out an elaborate but unsuccessful plan to overthrow the Spanish government and retake Natchez.⁹ Joshua and TOMLINSON were both thrown into prison where they remained for the three months the Tories were in control of Natchez, from April 1781 to June 1781. The men were released when Natchez surrendered itself back to Spain under the orders of GALVEZ. Apparently Joshua had the French and Spanish forces mixed up a bit. Although Natchez had originally been settled by the French, as mentioned above, the French were not in control of Natchez at any point during this time period, just the Spanish.¹⁰

"... When we got there the English had taken the place and we were prisoners 3 months till the French retook it."¹¹ . . . Would have done very well had not the Natchez people revolted and listed under the British."¹²

Joshua and Nat met the AUSTIN brothers, John and Philip, when they passed the Big-Black Creek, a tributary of the Mississippi River in the present day state of Mississippi. The AUSTINS were Tories and were directly involved in the groundwork of the conspiracy, and of course, they had to flee when the Spanish came to reclaim Natchez.¹³ Joshua says that on his return trip up the Mississippi River the Austins were no longer at their residence on Big-Black Creek. Joshua believed they had gone "to a place called Pensacola."¹⁴ I have found references to these men in several works on the early years of Natchez and they probably went with other Tories to Pensacola, Florida.

According to Joshua, TOMLINSON had enough money from the bit of flour he sold to get a piece of land joining Col HUTCHINS, another prominent early citizen of Natchez, and he chose to remain in there. HUTCHINS is also found in many histories

EARLY ROOTS IN AMERICA

THE FIRST GENERATION OF SWINGS IN AMERICA

The first generation of Swings in America, the three children of Jean Martin Schwing and Salome Schmidt Schwing of Bischweiler, Alsace, were Michael Swing (I-1), Salome Swing (I-2), and Samuel Swing (I-3).

THE YORK, PENNSYLVANIA SWINGS

I-1 Michael Swing (b. 1722, d. 1782) came to America in 1741, arriving in Philadelphia. He married Anna Margareta Parris and they moved to York, between the years of 1755 and 1758. They had seven children. His first two children were baptized at the Lutheran Church of St. Michael and Zion in Philadelphia, 1753 and 1755, and three years later, in 1758, their third child was born in York, Pennsylvania, as were their other four children.

Anna Margareta Swing, born in 1753 in Philadelphia.

Anna Elizabeth Swing, born in 1755 in Philadelphia.

John Peter Swing, born August 26, 1758 at York, Pennsylvania.

George Swing, born in 1766, at York, Pennsylvania.

Michael Swing, born on March 8, 1768 in York, Pennsylvania.

Catherine Swing, born November 27, 1772 in York, Pennsylvania.

His first two children were born in 1753 and 1755 in Philadelphia. His third child was born in 1758 in York, Pennsylvania. His other children were all born in York, Pennsylvania.

His will is entered in deed book 2-H, 234 York, Pennsylvania, dated April 16, 1789 and reads in part

... ancestor of Michael Swing, Killian Small and

Lot of ground situated on the west side of Duke Street in York, known on the general plan of York, as Lot #46."

This places Michael Swing in York, Pennsylvania from between 1755 and 1758, until his death in 1782.

I-2 Salome (Sarah) Swing (b. November 27, 1729, d. September 20, 1793). According to the vital records of York and Adams, Pennsylvania, Page 590, "Died 20, September, 1793, the widow Salome Gump (nee Schwing) born 27, November 1722, at Bischweiler, in Alsace, came to America in 1749, and at once to York.

She was married twice, first to Jacob Rummel in 1749, who died in 1759. They had five children, a son who died, and four daughters, through the daughters she had twenty grandchildren.

In 1770, she married Johann George Gump, and they had one child. Her children, whose names are known, are:-

Catherine Elizabeth Rummell (b. October 29, 1752)

George Jacob Rummell (b. March 8, 1759)

Anna Maria Gump (b. October 8, 1771)

THE SWING'S CORNER SWINGS

I-3 Samuel Swing. (b. June 6, 1732, d. March 13, 1801). He settled at Pittsgrove, Salem County, New Jersey. His farm was situated at what became known as Swing's Corner, which is at a cross road where the Camden-Bridgeton highway crosses a local road running between the towns of Elmer and Aldine. His farm home was west of crossroad, and at this writing is still standing. He married Sarah Diamant, and they had six children:-

Jeremiah Swing, born December 31, 1760.

Sarah Swing, born October 27, 1762.

Christiana Swing, born October 27, 1762.

Samuel Swing, born November 4, 1767.

Ruth Lawrence Swing, born October 4, 1769.

... October 27, 1771.

THE EARLY SWINGS IN AMERICA

Hans Martin Schwing was the Innkeeper of the Inn "Zur Blume", in Strasburg, Alsace. He had a son, Jean Martin Schwing, who married Salome Schmidt on May 4, 1716. She was born in Bischweiler on January 19, 1698, and died October 12, 1737 in Bischweiler.

Jean Martin Schwing and Salome Schmidt Schwing had ten children.

Marie Salome Schwing
(b. April 1, 1717, d. February 9, 1719)

Judith Schwing
(b. April 20, 1718, d. November 28, 1719)

Pierre Schwing
(b. January 18, 1726, d. 1761)

Marie Magdeleine Schwing
(b. November 13, 1727, d. August 29, 1729)

Salome Schwing
(b. November 27, 1729. Arrived in America in 1749., d. September 20, 1793 in York, Pennsylvania)

Samuel Schwing
(b. June 6, 1732. Arrived in America on November 3, 1750, d. March 13, 1801)

Abraham Schwing
(b. January 6, 1735. Came to America.

32
Daughter, Anna Margareta L. Swing b. January 1, 1764)

Daniel Schwing
(b. May 26, 1737, d. July 25, 1737)

Four of the ten children of Jean Martin Schwing and Salome Schmidt Schwing came to America, namely Michael Schwing, Salome Schwing, Samuel Schwing and Abraham Schwing. No records have been found in America of this Abraham Schwing.

In the Pennsylvania-German Immigration records, compiled by Ralph Beaver Strassburger, and in the Pennsylvania Historical Society, the following arrivals in America are recorded:

"At the Court House in Philadelphia, September 23rd, 1741.

Present:- The Hon. George Thomas, Esq., Lieut, Governor; Samuel Hasell, Esq., Mayor of Philadelphia. The Palatines whose names are underwritten, imported in the ship Marlborough, Thomas Bell, Master, from Rotterdam, but last from Cowes, did this day take the oath to the government, viz.,

Michael (M. S.) Swyng, age 40, also listed as Michael Swinte.

Note
The above age of 40 is in error according to the Church birth record from Alsace, and hence, with his official birthdate listed as 1722, his age above should be 19.

"At the Court House in Philadelphia, Saturday, November 3, 1750.

Present:- The Worshipful William Plumstead, Esq., Mayor; Mr. David Martin, Rector of the Academy. The foreigners whose names are subscribed, imprinted the ship "Brotherhood", Captain John Thomason, from Rotterdam, last from Cowes, did this day subscribe the qualifications.

The fourth child of Jean Martin Schwing and Salome Schmidt Swing was born in Bischweiler, in Alsace. He arrived in America, on the ship "Marlborough," at Philadelphia September 23rd, 1741.

He married Anna Margareta Parris, and they had seven children. The first two were born in Philadelphia, and the others were born in York, Pennsylvania, where they made their residence.

The second child of Michael Swing (I-1) and Anna Margareta Parris Swing, was born in Philadelphia, and was baptized in the Lutheran Church of St. Michael and Zion in Philadelphia.

II-6 JOHN PETER SWING
b. August 26, 1758; d. 1761

The third child of Michael Swing (I-1) and Anna Margareta Parris Swing, was born in York, Pennsylvania. He is registered in the Christ Lutheran Church at York, Pennsylvania, at the time of his death in 1761.

II-7 JOHANN JACOB SWING
b. June 15, 1763

The fourth child of Michael Swing (I-1) and Anna Margareta Parris Swing, was born in York, Pennsylvania. He was baptized July 3, 1763 at the Trinity First Reformed Church in York, Pennsylvania.

II-8 GEORGE SWING
b. 1766; d. January 12, 1844

The fifth child of Michael Swing (I-1) and Anna Margaretta Parris Swing was born in York, Pennsylvania. As a young man, he sold his York, Pennsylvania properties, and moved to the Swing Settlement in Salem County, New Jersey.

His first farm was in Pittsgrove Township, but later he purchased and moved to a farm in Deerfield Township.

In 1804, he and his family moved to Clermont County, Ohio, where he purchased a four hundred and seventy-nine and a half acre farm. He was a Methodist, and was the township agent for the American Bible Society.

In 1785, he married his first cousin, Sarah Swing (II-15), and they had five children.

- III-26 Michael Swing (b. February 1786)
- III-27 Samuel Swing (b. July 3, 1788)
- III-28 Lawrence Swing (b. September 11, 1790)

- III-30 Mary (Polly) Swing (b. April 23, 1797)

George Swing died January 12, 1844.

Sarah Swing died February 15, 1845.

II-9 MICHAEL SWING
b. March 8, 1768; d. January 17, 1834

The sixth child of Michael Swing (I-1) and Anna Margaretta Parris Swing, was born in York, Pennsylvania. He was baptized at the Trinity First Reformed Church of York, Pennsylvania. Like his older brother George, he too left York, Pennsylvania as a young man in 1789, and returned to southern New Jersey. In 1790, he settled in Fairfield Township, Cumberland County, New Jersey. In 1791 he was licensed to preach, and he held religious meetings in private homes. Later, he built a church on his farm, which became known as the Swing's Meeting House. In 1829, he was elected to the New Jersey state legislature.

In 1789 he married Sarah Murphy (b. 1765), daughter of Rev. John Murphy of Salem County. They had ten children.

- III-31 Dr. Charles Swing (b. March 4, 1790)
- III-32 Captain John M. Swing (b. September 15, 1791)
- III-33 Elizabeth Swing (b. October 10, 1794)
- III-34 Polly Swing (b. 1796)
- III-35 Anna Swing (b. 1798)
- III-36 Priscilla Murphy Swing (b. August 18, 1800)
- III-37 George M. Swing (b. January 16, 1803)
- III-38 Simon Sparks Swing (b. 1805)
- III-39 Sarah S. Swing (b. March 28, 1808)
- III-40 Michael Coates Swing (b. May 15, 1811)

Sarah Murphy Swing died February 16, 1813.

In 1814 he married Susannah Newkirk (b. 1786) and they had five children.

- III-41 Joseph Swing (b. April 28, 1814)
- III-42 Margaret Swing
- III-43 Pengan Swing
- III-44 Rebecca N. Swing (b. September 20, 1820)
- III-45 Benjamin Franklin Swing (b. October 10, 1827)

Michael Swing died January 17, 1834.

Susannah Newkirk Swing died May 1, 1867.

II-10 CATHERINE SWING
b. November 27, 1772

The seventh child of Michael Swing (I-1) and Anna Margaretta Parris Swing was born in York, Pennsylvania. She was baptized March 21, 1773 at the Trinity First Reformed Church of York, Pennsylvania.

II-11 CATHERINE ELIZABETH RUMMEL
b. October 29, 1752

A child of Salome (Sarah) Swing Rummel (I-2) and Jacob Rummel was born at York, Pennsylvania.

Michael Schwing, on board
Samuel (x) Shwing."

Note: Before the Revolutionary War, all ships from the continent were compelled to stop at English ports, in order to secure clearance papers for American Ports. Also the words, "On board," beside Michael Schwing's name is evidence that he had been in America before, and had previously taken his oath, and was on board to accompany Samuel Schwing.

On Page 590 of the Vital Pennsylvania Records of the Counties of York and Adams, is the following:-

"Died, 20 September, 1793, the widow Salome Gump (nee Schwing) born 27 November 1722, at Bischweiler in Alsace. Came in 1749 to Pennsylvania, at once to York." The above date 1722, should read 1729, according to the Church birth records from Alsace.

Thus, the three children of Jean Martin Schwing and Salome Schmidt Swing, of Bischweiler, Alsace, namely, Michael, Salome, and Samuel are recorded in America.

This Michael Schwing is not mentioned by Gilbert S. Swing in his "History of the Swing Family," although he does mention his son, Michael, who later became the Reverend Michael Swing, of Fairton, New Jersey. His branch of the family is an important part of the history of the Swing family in America.

There is evidence of other Swings in this Country in Colonial times.

In the Pennsylvania-German immigration records, the others listed therein, with the date of their oath taking, are as follows:-

Johans Schwing	October 31, 1737
Gaspar Swing, also Schwing	October 23, 1754
Bernard (x) Schwing	September 30, 1774
Henrich Schwing	September 30, 1774

26
The Revolutionary War records also lists a Peter Swing as having been a member of the New York Navy; a Henry Swing, as having been a member of the Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania Militia, and a Valentine Swing, as having been a member of the Gloucester County, New Jersey Militia.

According to the United States census of 1790 there was a family of Swings in North Carolina, whose names were, John Swing, Lockwick Swing and Mathias Swing. The latter was listed as the owner of one slave. There was also an Alexander Swing as having lived in York County.

The Gilbert S. Swing "History of the Swing Family" mentions a brother of Samuel Swing, named Jeremiah, and that the two brothers arrived in New York from Alsace, and after eight years moved on to South Jersey, where Samuel settled, and that the brother Jeremiah moved on to settle in York County, Pennsylvania.

It has been established from the Pennsylvania-German Immigration records that Samuel Swing landed in Philadelphia and not in New York.

There is no record of a Jeremiah Swing, as being a brother of Samuel Swing, in the church records from Alsace. Samuel Swing did have a son Jeremiah Swing, who is buried in the Pittsgrove Presbyterian Church graveyard.

Gilbert S. Swing's history also states that Samuel married a Long Island girl named Sarah Diamant. According to the will of one Lois Diamond, 1769 of Fairfield Township, Cumberland County, New Jersey, she left her daughter Sarah Swing 5 shillings. This will was dated December 29, 1770. Also in 1745 the will of Nathaniel Diamant is recorded in the New Jersey archives, Volume XXX, Page 305. All of these facts place the Diamant family in South Jersey, which was also the home of Samuel Swing.

Gilbert S. Swing writes that "Alsace was spoken of as the birthplace and former home of our ancestors. In the ships' records, they were referred to as palatines, which was a district in Alsace. It also said their ship sailed from Rotterdam. That was the port from whence most of these German immigrants sailed to America.

THE SECOND GENERATION OF SWINGS IN AMERICA

The second generation of Swings in America were mainly located at Fairton, Cumberland County, New Jersey, in Tate Township, Clermont County, Ohio, at Swing's Corners, Pittsgrove Township, Salem County, New Jersey, and in Kentucky, along the Ohio River, across from Cincinnati, Ohio.

THE FAIRTON SWINGS

Michael Swing, (II-8) son of Michael Swing (I-1) of York, Pennsylvania, returned to Southern New Jersey from York, and settled at Fairton, in Fairfield Township, Cumberland County, New Jersey. He purchased a farm from the Rev. Daniel Elmer, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Fairfield. It was located on the south side of the Cohansey River, which was navigable into the Delaware Bay. The soil of his farm was rich and productive, and the river offered excellent opportunities for shad, herring and oysters.

Michael Swing was an excellent preacher, and held many meetings in private homes. He was licensed to preach in 1791 and built a church on his own property, which became known as the "Swing's meetinghouse." The old Swing cemetery is located on a sloping tract of land on the bank of the Cohansey River. Many of the early members of the Swing family in America are buried there.

In the Swing cemetery can be seen a stone marker bearing the following inscription:-

"In memory of Rev. Michael Swing.

Died, January 17, 1834.

In the full assurance of eternal life,

Aged 65 years, 10 months, 9 days.

He joined the M. E. church in 1790, and soon after was licensed to preach. He labored extensively - the office of class leader, Deacon, Elder, and Steward
Servant of God, well done
• Rest from thy loved employ

The battles fought, the victory won
Enter the master's joy.

Susannah Newkirk Swing, Michael's wife, survived her husband by thirty-four years and died May 1, 1867. In the old Swing cemetery can be seen a marble tablet bearing the following inscription:-

In memory of

Susannah,

Second wife of Rev. Michael Swing.

For 34 years his widow.

She departed, in hope of eternal life, the first day of May, 1867, aged 81 years, 6 months, 13 days. For 63 years a member of the M. E. Church, and faithful in her religious life.

Gently she is sleeping

She has breathed her last

Gently, while we are weeping,

She to heaven has passed.

THE OHIO SWINGS

The Ohio Swings first settled in an area about twenty-five miles east of Cincinnati in Clermont County between the Poplar and Sugartree Creeks. In the year 1803, the Reverend John Collins, the "Old Man Eloquent," took up an option on a large tract of land in that county and founded the "Jersey Settlement." In 1804, George Swing, (II-8) and his wife Sarah Swing, (II-11), and their five children, made the trip west by "Conestoga Wagon" to Fort Pitt, and by flat boat to a landing on the Ohio River known as Cincinnati. They were accompanied on the trip by Nicholas Longworth. The latter settled on the hills beyond Cincinnati, where he planted vineyards. George Swing purchased four hundred and seventy-nine and a half acres (479-1/2) of land in Tate Township, Clermont County, now lying between Batavia and Bethel. He paid nine hundred and forty-nine dollars for the land. He also invested one thousand ($1,000) dollars in a bank in Cincinnati, but this latter institution failed.

After clearing the land, he built a small hut, but later, as the clearing of the land progressed and his farm prospered, he built a stone home.

Many of his decedents lived in Batavia, Bethel, New Richmond, and Mt. Holly. Other decedents travelled further west.

THE SWING'S CORNER SWINGS

Samuel Swing, (II-17), the youngest son of Samuel Swing, (I-3), inherited the farm, but when he moved west to Kentucky it came into possession of another son, Abraham, (II-19). Abraham divided it among his children. Their sphere of influence reached from Pittsgrove to Pole Tavern to the Washington School House.

Pittsgrove is a small village in Pittsgrove Township on the Camden-Bridgeton Highway, about three miles north of Swing's Corner. In 1802, a post-office was established there and mail was delivered twice a week. It was named Pittsgrove in honor of the township and has since retained that name, but to many people in that community, it is better known as "Pole Tavern," after the hostelry which was situated there. The tavern derives its name from the fact that a Liberty-Pole long stood in the central part of the village, and traditionally claimed to mark the site of the first Liberty Pole erected in Salem County. It was a regular stop on the stage route between Salem, Bridgeton and Philadelphia. Joseph Swing, son of the Rev. Michael Swing of Fairton, was a stage driver over this route.

During the Revolutionary War and the War of 1812, Pole Tavern became one of the military centers of Salem County. An arsenal building was erected, and large training grounds were purchased. Organized troops were sworn in and drilled. The imposing stone edifice and beautiful grounds surrounding it bristled with artillery wagons and ambulances, and during those early wars, the soldiers saw active service.

In the Revolutionary War, Samuel Swing, (I-3), was a member of the local militia that was called upon to turn back the British raids into New Jersey for food. His record from the adjutant general's office in Trenton, New Jersey, states that he enlisted as a private in Captain Jacob DuBois' company from Pittsgrove Township, Colonel Samuel Dick's regiment, Salem County Militia, September 10, 1775, during the Revolutionary War.

Gilbert S. Swing tells of a conflict about a mile north of Pole Tavern, in which the Tories were decisively defeated.

He also stated that "During the War of 1812, a military drill was established at Pole Tavern, and soldiers were trained for duty by Brigadier Jeremiah DuBois, Major Bloomfield, and Lieutenant Abraham Swing. In 1814, when the British threatened Philadelphia, the militia was called into active service, and Lieutenant Abraham Swing was attached to Captain Shepherd Gandy's company of Colonel Howell's regiment of Salem County Militia. They first encamped at Billingsport, but later were transferred to occupy the forts at Cape May, New Jersey. In December 1814, they were mustered out of service.

1812 WAR DIARY OF ABRAHAM SWING

"Joined camp at Billingsport, Sept. 27, A.D. 1814. Being detailed as First Lieutenant of the Artillery in the Service of the United States and attached to the command of Captain Sheppard Gandy from Cedarville. The first move after we entered camp was to report ourselves to the officer of the day, and then to apply to the quartermaster for our camp equipage. We obtained tents the first day and 4 kettles, 4 pans, 2 axes, 1 spade and nine sheefs of rye straw. The next day we got two more and a wall tent for the Captain and myself. Not having a large gun for three days we did little but fix our tents and look around at the olde fort and at passing objects.

Nathaniel Whitticar & Joseph Bateman prepared our victuals for us, coffee or chocolate in the morning, piping hot of a good quality, in our tin cups. Our beds were of three sheefs of straw spread on the ground confined on each side by cedar rails, a billet of wood at the head and foot. We then spread a coverlid on the straw and two blankets over us and slept comfortably.

Provision Return of Captain Gandy company of Artillery of New Jersey Militia detailed in the Service of the United States under the command of General Elmer, stationed at Billingsport for one day 28 September 1814.

No. of officers: 1 Captain, 1 first Lieutenant

CONOVER

PIONEERS AND PILGRIMS

CELEBRATION OF A FAMILY

ELIZABETH CONOVER KELLEY

MEMORANDUM

TO : [illegible]
FROM : [illegible]
SUBJECT : [illegible]

Now we've left Alaska . . .
because there was no gold mine
But this time only two of us moved on.
Now we have each other and a little memory to cling to Still you won't let me go—go on alone.

Refrain:

I know you're tired of following
My elusive dreams and schemes
For they're only fleeting things
My elusive dreams.

Elusive as they may have been, dreams were what led most newcomers to the area. A spirit of adventure, certainly, but anticipation, too, that life had more good things to offer in a new location in a fresh, new land unspoiled by old disappointments or old failures.

The prototype pioneer was a young man in his late twenties or early thirties, usually with a wife and one or more children, whose dreams for a brighter future were strong enough to persuade him to risk his entire livelihood (whatever it was) in the effort to reach such a Promised Land as Cincinnati.

It was to this young, bustling, culturally diverse city that John and Jemima Blackman Conover came in 1816. It is safe to say that nothing in their life experience before really prepared them for what they found, although they had heard about this wonderful new land from friends and relatives in New Jersey who had preceded them to the "Land of the Miamis" in Ohio. It was the Rev. John Collins, husband to Sarah Blackman who was a cousin of Jemima's, who was the most influential in persuading John and his family that their future lay in Ohio. So it was only a couple of years after his father Peter's death that John and Jemima and their family of six left Galaway Township, Gloucester County, New Jersey to become a part of what became known as "the Jersey Settlement" along the banks of the South Fork of the Little Miami River at Bantam, near Batavia.

Rockey and Bancroft's 1880 History of Clermont County, Ohio gives us the following picture:

The "Jersey Settlement" was founded by the Rev. John Collins. He purchased a large tract of land on the East Fork, in the northwest corner of the present township of Tate, but part of which is now in Batavia, on which he settled in 1803. In the spring of that year the families of Collins, Cornelius McCullom, Isaac Higbee, and Edward Doughty started from New Jersey in large wagons, crossing the mountains, and at Pittsburgh bought a large boat, in which they descended the Ohio, while the teams were sent overland in charge of the hired men—Robert Doughty, Peter and John Frambes, and Lucas Lake. After a tedious journey the boat landed at Columbia in June, and they came up by Newton and the Witham settlement on a blazed path of a road to their new lands, then an unbroken forest of magnificence and beauty. There they found a cabin without a floor some hunters had built, and in it they camped for a few days until they erected their own cabins on their lands running from the mouth of Clover Creek down the East Fork nearly four miles. Mr. Collins got the lower division, including the bend of the river making the grand, historic "Horsehoe." Here the Rev. Collins resided the greater part of his life, dying at Maysville, Ky., in 1845. Of the sons of John Collins, David, Learner, and Richard, the latter was the most noted, and erected a large mansion which now stands on the Collins place in Batavia. There were also three daughters, named Elizabeth, Alice, and Electa, the latter being the only surviving member of the family, living in Tate as Mrs. Col. William Thomas, who was sheriff of the county from 1833 to 1837. In the course of the next ten to fifteen years more than a dozen families came from New Jersey and settled south of the Collins farm, and for many years the "New Jersey Settlement" was one of the most widely known in the country, nearly all of its members being characterized for their thrift and general intelligence.

While the Jersey settlement was testimony to John Collins' powers of persuasion and speaks to us of the trust and confidence placed in him by hundreds of people, we need to take a closer look to understand the motivation of this man who came to stand for so much to so many in the entire area. We again quote Rocky & Bancroft:

In the early history of Clermont County no one of the grand old pioneers bore a more prominent part than the Rev. John Collins, the "old man eloquent" of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was born in Gloucester Co., N.

Richard Collins

New John - Well

J. in 1769, seventeen years before the Declaration of Independence was promulgated, and died in 1845 at Maysville, Ky. His parents were Quakers, but he was most happily converted in 1794, and united with the Methodist Church, in which for over half a century he preached to a suffering people with remarkable and unprecedented success in reclaiming sinners and leading them into paths of holiness they had not known. After laboring some years as a local preacher in New Jersey he removed in 1803 to this county, and in 1804 preached the first Methodist sermon ever delivered in Cincinnati. In 1807 he was admitted into the Western Conference, and among the thousands he led into the church and to the Saviour was John McLean, afterwards judge of the Supreme Court of the United States for about a third of a century. Father Collins' appointments, with two intervals of location, were for thirty years in Ohio; and in 1837 he took a superannuated relation, and died, at the ripe old age of 76 years, a blessed death, his last words being "Happy, happy, happy!"

Rev. Collins, hearing of the rich land in Ohio and the vast resources of this then far-distant Western State, became desirous of emigrating to this new El Dorado, and by conversing with a few of his neighbors he induced several of them to go with him. In the summer of 1802 he came out to view the country, intending, if he found it as represented, to purchase land for three men besides himself. He learned that Gen. William Lytle, an old Indian fighter, was a land agent living at Williamsburgh, then the shire-town of the new county, and that he had many tracts of land for sale. Gen. Lytle took Collins to see many tracts but none suited him until he saw Clayton's Survey No. 581, called "The Horseshoe Bottom" on the east fork of the Little Miami River. This tract greatly delighted Mr. Collins; of it Cornelius McCollum, Isaac Higbee, and Josiah Allbason each took 200 acres, and Mr. Collins the balance, the whole being 966 and two-thirds acres, but overrunning considerably. In the division Collins got the lower part of the land, including the famous Horseshoe Bend, which he came to occupy in the spring of 1803, his associates building cabins on the tract above him.

These pioneers spent the summer and fall clearing the land, preparing to be comfortable in the coming winter, and by next spring Mr. Collins had two acres ready for corn, it being too late the year of their arrival to raise anything but turnips, of which they produced vast quantities, but in the year following they raised over a hundred bushels of corn to the acre! Mr. Collins selected a most beautiful site, where there was a splendid spring of water, on the second bottom from the river, in the centre of his land, to build a house, where after it was cleared, he had the loveliest view to be found in this Virginia Military Reservation district. At that day there was a very large and luxuriant growth of all kinds of vegetation—wild pea vines, wild grapes, several varieties of wild plums, crab-apples, blue and red haws, strawberries, gooseberries, and blackberries. All kinds of wild animals abounded, and game and fish were in great abundance. There were salt springs frequented by deer on the Collins' plantation, and the hills on the north side of the east fork were therefore called by hunters "Elk Lick Hills."

There being no church nearer than six or seven miles, Mr. Collins immediately opened his house for Christian service and religious worship, and one of the rough settlers nearby, when he heard that a Methodist minister had bought the land, kneeled down and prayed the Lord would kill him; but when Mr. Collins arrived this rough but honest settler visited the pioneer parson, was soon converted and became one of Clermont's best citizens and a most exemplary and zealous member of the church. Mr. Collins gave a large lot off his place and had on it built a log meeting house, in which was regular preaching and a flourishing membership. In 1818 a tasty frame edifice was erected which was named "Bethel Chapel," as the original structure built of logs in 1807 had been.

John Collins' wife was Sarah Blackman, daughter of David and Abigail Blackman of the Township of Great Egg Harbor, New Jersey. She was a sister to James and Learner Blackman, both important to Ohio history, and a cousin to Jemima and Ann Blackman married to brothers John and Peter Conover, respectively. The descendants of Andrew Blackman (the chronology of his family line is given elsewhere) were solid productive citizens in what ever part of the country they happened to be found. Well educated and intelligent, cognizant of the working of the social and political structures of their communities, they were called upon by their neighbors and friends to posts of public service. Thus we find the names of both James and his son Lewis V. Blackman on deeds and other legal documents requiring the services of a Justice of the Peace, recorder's clerk, notary, etc.

The other brother Learner, or Larner as he was sometimes called, chose a more public life as a Methodist minister. His influence in the area was tremendous although his dedicated service to his fellowman was cut short when he was drowned in a ferry accident crossing the Ohio in 1815. As late as 1970 the burial place of the Rev. Learner Blackman was re-discovered under the annex of Wesley Chapel in Cincinnati. We quote from the Saturday Magazine of the Cincinnati Post and Times-Star for 25 April, 1970:

History buffs have discovered a pioneer cemetery under the annex of Wesley Chapel. It started when Fred Starr, Princeton University history professor came back to Cincinnati his home town to do research for some writing.

As he dug through musty volumes stored in the office of Wesley Chapel he ran across the church's trustee's minutes from 1859 . . . he saw that in the construction of the annex to the church that year workmen had "disturbed some of the bodies" and had "reinterred them with utmost care." . . . Construction workers had then laid the gravestones flat and erected the annex over them. Starr conveyed this information to the Cincinnati Historical Society. The Society has the early records from 1826 to 1845. These volumes show that some 700 persons were buried around the chapel during its first 40 years . . . Armed with a flashlight and covered with old clothes the director of the Society, Richard Haupt and photographer Jerry Morgenroth, crawled into the two foot high crawl space under the annex, stirring up the dust of more than a century. Their curiosity paid off.

Haupt and Morgenroth found and photographed seven stones which they matched to names in the old record book, among them the "Rev. Samuel Lawner Blackman." His stone is inscribed "Drowned in the Ohio River in 1815."

Rowlain's record says "In the fall of 1815, Mr. Blackman was crossing the river with his new, young wife, to Covington on the way to his new station. The ferry boat was a crazy craft with sails and paddles. The hoisting of the sails frightened Mr. Blackman's horses and they plunged overboard dragging him with them. Although a good swimmer, he was entangled in the harness and was struck by the heels of the animals and sank immediately." . . .

Wesley Chapel was built in 1831 on the site of the Methodist Old Stone Church which had been erected in 1806. It is Cincinnati's oldest church and it was the largest meeting place west of the Alleghenies when it was constructed, seating 1200 people.

Wesley Chapel was sold to Procter and Gamble in January, 1969. Although they had no plans to remove or raze this old Methodist landmark in the next two years the structure no longer serves as the beacon it once was to our early pilgrims.

The name of Learner Blackman lives on, however. Perhaps not knowing that his death had been memorialized by a stone in Cincinnati (it is doubtful that his body was recovered) Learner's name appears on the family stone in the Blackman burial ground in New Jersey. His name or initials also appear on the gravestones of many namesakes among families of the "Jersey Settlement" who are laid to rest in Old Bethel Churchyard, as well as elsewhere in the Cincinnati area. The Rev. Learner Blackman was a powerful preacher, worthy of emulation by the young, so it is not surprising that parents should name their sons after him. One imagines, too, that giving his name to a newborn child had certain symbolic significance . . . by taking on his name the child took on his virtues—his singleminded dedication to saving souls and his love for his fellowman. The community viewed the accident which took Larnar's life as a tragedy. Not yet 35 years old, having been married only a few months to a young widow, Elizabeth Elliott, the young minister had only begun to tap the potential he had for service. No actual replacement was possible, of course, but many parents dreamed that their son might help to fill the void Larnar's passing left. Years later one of the Cincinnati Boys' Clubs still was known as the Larnar Blackman Branch. His name and, one hopes, his spirit lives on.

The name of John Collins is well-known in the annals of Ohio Methodism. The Methodist Historical Collection at Ohio Wesleyan University at Delaware, Ohio, is the repository of much valuable data from the days of the old circuit riders. Both Blackman and Collins entered the Western Conference as local preachers having been licensed to preach in West Jersey, their birth state. The record of their appointments to various circuits is contained in the official Minutes of the Conference, along with bits of eulogies incorporated into their obituaries. Judge John McLean of the U.S. Supreme Court's A Sketch of the Life of Reverend John Collins gives some fascinating descriptions of the day to day experiences endured and overcome by these itinerant men of God. Methodism then was as young and raw and untried as the frontier states in which it had its greatest impact. One might say they needed each other; together they grew up, matured, enhancing and complementing one another.

Although the early Methodist circuit riders did not have, generally speaking, the education nor polish of their counterparts in the East, their influence was perhaps greater. Certainly they suffered similar hardships. Philip Vickers Fithian, Princeton graduate in the 1770s, licensed to preach by the Presbytery, took arduous "missionary" trips into lowland Virginia and remote parts of West Jersey (where he found the natives "wicked and profane") before being commissioned a chaplain with the Revolutionary troops. Weakened by exposure, fatigue and tension Fithian was too frail to resist fever and dysentery. In the Cincinnati area in 1800 young Methodist ministers were being sent out into the sparsely settled wilderness areas, Learner Blackman and Collins among the number. In 1805 Blackman went on a mission to Natchez.

His obituary explains: "Here a new scene of things presented itself to his view. He is now to face uncivilized nations, and a wilderness of four or five hundred miles. After a journey of ten or eleven days, and lying out as many nights, making his saddle-bags his pillow, his blanket and cloak his bed, the heavens his covering, the God of Israel his defence, he arrived safe in the territory. At the time of his arrival, Methodism was in its infancy in that country. A few had been awakened and converted to God, through the instrumentality of our beloved Tobias Gibson . . . Notwithstanding there were some respectable men and women friendly disposed, yet it is a lamentable truth, that a number of the first settlers of that country were bankrupts in morals, and their proud hearts and irreligious lives made them oppose the truths which this, as well as other good men, delivered. As such, our first preachers in those parts had considerable difficulties. We may venture to affirm that they were subjects of almost universal contempt; and brother Blackman shared largely in these sufferings. In 1806 he was appointed to preside in the Mississippi District: God honoured his administration with success, sinners were converted, and houses were built and dedicated to God. In 1807 he still presided in the district; his labours were still blessed, souls were converted, and his name is remembered with pleasure among that people to this day . . ."

In tidewater Virginia Fithian confided to his Journals his discomfort at having to sleep in the same room that housed his host's entire family. It was bad enough that he had to strip down and prepare himself for bed under watchful female eyes, but the morning brought worse knowledge. "I had been near all over bemeasured with the Fleas—Fleas biting! Bugs crawling!—On a hard board, surrounded with a snoring Family!"

In Ohio and Kentucky Collins and Blackman and their brother preachers were laboring under similar, perhaps even more primitive conditions. Saving souls was not only serious business, it was physically hard work as well. The frontier preacher had to be an orator of some skill who could hold forth for two hours or more at a time. These plain and simple folk were hungry for Scriptural reinforcement of the faith they acquired from their far-away families in the East. Because they needed to hear rousing sermons, to feel support from neighbors and friends whose presence at these religious meetings affirmed their own yearning for more holy lives, our pioneer forebears were dependent upon the circuit riders.

The early Methodist preachers soon gained a reputation for giving powerful sermons and for their success in exorcising "the Devil" in human nature by "praying through" a confessed sinner. Many a backwoodsman credited his conversion to such a technique. It was not uncommon for one family member to solicit the aid of the preacher in converting another member of the family whose vices were threatening to disrupt the unit. The sinner was virtually held captive until persistent prayer, exhortation from the Bible, tears and pleadings had the desired effect. The methods of the so-called "de-programmers" hired today by parents of children who have been snatched away from cult groups is in many ways reminiscent of the techniques of the early circuit riders.

It is possible but not verified that Peter and Ann (or perhaps Mary) had three other young children who all died within a two to three week period in August, 1849, and that Peter himself succumbed to the same "flux", named as the cause of death of the children. The children were EDWARD, who died 6 August; TABITHA who died 19 August, and "PETE-IE" who died 22 August 1849. It is also possible that these three children belonged to the TABITHA JANE CONOVER, who died 9 August 1849 "ae 19 y 7m 9d" and wife of J. CONOVER, whose grave is located in the Duck Creek Baptist Cemetery, Columbia Township. Tabitha Jane may have been a first wife of James B. Conover. It is believed that these family groups are related; however, no specific proof of the parentage of the three children has been found.

Since the only son of Peter and Ann to survive to adulthood was James, and his offspring were daughters, the Conover line for which Peter was progenitor died out with James' death in 1868.

Peter Conover and his new bride Ann (they had been married just before they left for Ohio) quickly established themselves as substantial citizens in the Madisonville area. As early as April 5, 1819 Peter's ear mark for cattle was recorded and recognized in the Columbia Township, and his name and amounts assessed appears in the tax returns for that area. Peter's land in Madisonville is designated on a map of Hamilton County done by William D. Emerson in 1847, and a short street running parallel to the railroad still bears the name Conover. A number of extracts of deeds have been included in this section as they are explanatory of Peter's land transactions and his dealings with neighbors and friends. It is through such legal documents that we learn some of the details regarding various facets of his life. For example it was through a deed in Woodbury, N. J. archives it was learned that Peter and Ann sold her share of the property inherited from her father to Job Conover after they were in Ohio; another one in Ohio nearly fifty years later reveals that Peter leased his land to his son James B. a year before his demise. Still later another document informs us that mony was performed by J. T. Andrew, ECC. Rebecca was referred to by Josephine and Etta Bergler as "Aunt Beck Messer" but no mention was made of the given name of her second husband. It is believed that her first husband, Joseph Maxwell, died in Cincinnati at a Mrs. Day's boarding house. There was one son, John Maxwell, who may have remained in Ohio. On 3 June, 1895, after his mother's death on 21 January, John Maxwell petitioned the Adams County Court as "sole heir." The court appointed executor William Bowling testified that Rebecca died intestate and destitute so there was no estate for John to inherit.

John Maxwell may well have descendants, but we have no knowledge of them or their whereabouts.

John and Jemima's first child was undoubtedly SARAH CONOVER who married AMASA HIGBEE on 12 November 1818 in Clermont County, Ohio a year after the family arrived from New Jersey. It is possible that the young couple knew each other in old Gloucester County, for Amasa had been born there about 1797, but he had arrived in Ohio only shortly before his future bride. It was his uncle Isaac Higbee who accompanied the Rev. John Collins to the area in Tate Township where they first bought land in 1803; Amasa's parents were George and Nancy McCollum Higbee of Egg Harbor, New Jersey who removed to Clermont County, Ohio about 1816. They were parents of a large family:

Jeremiah Higbee, who died unmarried

Brazier, b. 1802; d. 21 Oct. 1851. Interred at Old Bethel

Rhoda who married Thomas Corwin and had children: Anna, Mary, Samuel

Sarah who married Mordecai Winter. Chn: Ruth, Elizabeth and one son

*Amasa Edwin who married Sarah Conover and had six children.

Naomi who married John Smith. Chn: Elizabeth, Caroline, Patton, Brazier

James born 28 Feb. 1813.

Polly who married Barton. Chn: George, Benjamin, and daughters

Richard who married Sarah Small. Chn: Mary, Ellen, Albina

John, married 1st _____ Dougherty 2nd Louise

Wright. Chn: Wm., Phebe, Mary, Amy

William Wayland born 4 January 1817

Martha Higbee who died unmarried.

Nancy and George Higbee's names appear on the same gravestone in Old Bethel churchyard. Nancy died 7 November 1859 at the age of 83; George died 13 years earlier on 20 August 1846, at the age of 75. Born in 1771, George was the son of a Revolutionary War soldier.

Although there may have been some children who died young and are therefore not listed, the record shows that Amasa and Sarah Conover Higbee had only six children:

AMASA EDWIN HIGBEE, JR. (Sarah, John, Peter, Peter, Peter, Peter, Pieter, Wolfert)

b 1 February 1838 in Westwood, Hamilton County, Ohio person responsible for John and Jemima's family coming to Ohio some two or three years earlier.

It is curious, however, that John and Jemima became members of the newly established Christian Church in Bethel about that time, where they retained their membership until they moved into Cincinnati in 1826. Why they would leave the church of the fiery old preacher called the "Grand Old Man of Methodism in Ohio" we do not know.

As little as we know of John Conover, Jr., we know even less of CHARLOTTE, who was the fourth child and third daughter. In Etta Bergler's account Charlotte married a John or George Perdue; she may have had a daughter Electie Perdue. We have found no further mention of such a child, nor such a husband. There is mention of Charlotte Perdue and Albion Law, "minor heirs," to the estate of John Conover, Jr. whose petition was filed 29 September 1846 on their behalf by Elliott P. Wade, as next friend, and their guardian Plato A. Goodwin. This petition leads us to believe that Charlotte married a man named "Law." But since both Albion Law and Charlotte Perdue had a guardian it seems probable that both minor children were orphaned by this date, 1846. We do know that the infant Charlotte Perdue was the only living child of Ann Conover and her husband Alfred B. Perdue; we know that Alfred had died intestate on 15 September 1839. We found no further mention of Charlotte Conover, nor the children Albion Law and Charlotte Perdue.

Most of what we know about ANN CONOVER PERDUE and her family is gleaned from documents and papers deposited in the estate boxes in the Quincy courthouse, or from letters of administration, and deeds. Some of the information is confusing. Since Alfred B. Perdue died intestate an administrator had to be appointed and his estate appraised. His principal estate box (# 21) indicates that John Conover (presumed to be Perdue's father-in-law, although it was possibly his brother-in-law) was appointed executor; Tilford Hackersmith, Joseph Orr and George W. Pollard were appointed to be appraisers. The date was 4 November 1839. In Volume C, page 196 of Letters of Administration for Adams County, Elliott P. Wade, administrator of the estate of Alfred B. Perdue, deceased intestate on 15 September 1839, makes a final accounting on 8 February 1844 of the discharge of his responsibilities. Unfortunately the estate box (# 51) in which these papers are presumed to be could not be found.

Papers that are available indicate that Perdue had been in partnership with his brother-in-law Isaac Wilson selling some type of merchandise. A number of accounts were outstanding in the Lima community, including those of William Orr, Sr., Joseph Barber, Stan Smith, Nelson Crank. Appraisers labelled the accounts of James Harvey, Elizabeth Elliott, Ishmael Dazy, James Workman and Joseph Pettit, among others, as being "doubtful" or "desperate," in terms of being collectible after Perdue died. In addition Perdue's debts were listed as being chiefly loans from relatives: $140 from his father-in-law John Conover and $200 from brother-in-law Robert Conover. A note dated April 1839 to Joseph Ireland, another brother-in-law, for $16.00 stated it was for the purpose of "getting the timbers for a frame house 18 by 36 feet." This note seems to suggest that Perdue's death five months later was unexpected—perhaps the result of an accident—for it is hardly likely that he would have been planning to build a house if he were suffering a long term illness. Furthermore Perdue and Ann's marriage was of brief duration; it had been less than two and a half years since they had been married in Cincinnati. Ann was left with an infant for whom it was necessary for her to provide. There is a notice in the estate papers dated 6 June 1842 and signed by her brother Robert that Ann had drawn against the estate for living expenses for herself and daughter. (John Conover, Sr. had died in January and presumably Elliott Wade had not yet been appointed administrator to succeed him.) It may be presumed that Ann died between 1842 and 29 September 1846 when Elliott P. Wade filed as her minor child's "next friend." At any rate, we found no further reference either to Ann nor her child Charlotte Perdue.

Our information on REBECCA CONOVER is also scanty. Born about 1814 in Gloucester County, Rebecca was a toddler, the baby of the family, when her parents and sibs made the long trek from New Jersey to Ohio. We presume her growth from infancy to adulthood took the normal course for on 26 October 1834 Rebecca married Joseph Maxwell in Hamilton County, Ohio. The cere-

born ?

Married Frederick Percival but had no children.

These Higbee grandchildren of John and Jemima undoubtedly had descendants but they are not known to us. Amasa and Sarah remained in Ohio when Sarah's parents and most of her sisters and brothers with their families moved on to Illinois. There was quite possibly fairly frequent visitation between them as travelling became easier. From legal documents such as deeds, land transactions, etc. we know that Amasa followed in the footsteps of his Uncle Isaac in being a substantial, apparently successful business man. Family ties between the Conovers and the Higbees remained close. Sarah named her second son James Blackman after her maternal grandfather, and her last daughter after her mother. Sarah's young aunt Ann, who married Peter Conover, also named a son James Blackman after this grandfather. It is believed that Isaac Higbee, Jr.'s first wife, Keziah String, may have been a sister of Ann String, first wife to Noah Conover, who was Sarah's youngest uncle. Succeeding generations lost touch, however, as the blood relationship spread further apart these distant cousins no longer lived in the same area.

John and Jemima's other children, who went with them to Lima, Adams County Illinois in 1836/37, were Amelia and Isaac Wilson, Jonas and Esther Ann Homan Conover, Robert and Hannah Elizabeth Conover, John Conover, Jr., Ann and Alfred B. Perdue, and Mary and Joseph Ireland.

Chronologies for Amelia, Robert and Mary follow along with what biographical data was available. Since Jonas is the continuation of the direct line we are emphasizing and we have voluminous material for this family, his history will comprise a separate chapter.

Isaac Frazier married Jennie Crenshaw
George Frazier married Dollie Shipe

As is true very often in the case of female ancestors, the descendants of Amelia Conover have become unaware of their relationship to Conover cousins who bear the family name. They are Wilson descendants now.

Isaac Wilson was a grandson of Savil Wilson and his wife Susannah of Deptford, New Jersey. Savil was also an ancestor of Edyth Ensminger Keene (through her grandmother) who now owns a portion of the land included in a land grant Isaac Wilson received from President Andrew Jackson. Part of this acreage lies in Hancock County which explains why daughters Caroline and Eliza Jane's marriage records are in the courthouse at Carthage. There are a goodly number of Wilson descendants living in Missouri, in the counties just across the Mississippi.

Fagley Name Traced To German Quakers, But Browns Came First

Mr. and Mrs. Hermon E. Fagley

Fagley has been a well-known name around Bethel for nearly 150 years — that's when Hermon E. Fagley's German Quaker-ancestors began re-locating here from New-Jersey, Maryland and Connecticut. Ruhama Brown Fagley's family goes back even a little farther than that having come to what would become Clermont County from New Jersey shortly after the signing of the treaty of Greenville in 1795. Seven generations of her side of the family have farmed the site where Fagley's Apple Orchard is situated, about two miles west of Bethel. The original 600 acres were purchased for $12/acre and paid for in Spanish gold. Although there were always apple trees there, it was Ruhama and Hermon who began the orchard business which is currently managed by Hermon B. and Ruth Ann Fagley.

THE BETHEL JOURNAL JUNE 1975 TALK ABOUT PEOPLE

by Peggy Ross

Now retired and living in Bethel proper (although Mr. Fagley says he usually finds some reason to go out to the orchard about everyday), the couple spends a great deal of their time digging up local history, tracing down genealogies, corresponding with third and fourth generation of people whose roots lay in this area. Last summer, for instance, they received eight inquiries. The furthest inquiry ever came from Libya, Africa from a gentleman whose grandfather owned the corner where the Grant Memorial Building is located. Together, the pair forms a veritable walking encyclopedia of historical information.

How did they happen to become so interested in history? Well, Ruhama (pronounced Roo-Jah-ma) a Biblical name meaning "Thou hast been compassionate over all thy people," Hosea 2:2), was the youngest of five children. She tagged everywhere with her mother, she said. She heard conversations between and about town-people, relatives, ancestors, and she overheard bits and pieces of conversations with neighbors and friends. These things all stuck.

While the farm was not always an orchard or roadside market, it was a Travellers' Rest in the 1840s. Mrs. Fagley owns the dairy of her great aunt, written by the 19-year-old seminary student in 1847, the year she cooked at the family inn. She met and set down for history the colorful people who passed by or stayed over.

Hermon E. grew up in the Concord community, north of Bethel on the Williamsburg Road, where his grandfather had 460 acres. His mother, as Ru-young people — hands — live with them at the farm.

Mrs. Fagley's mother began a history book on her 67th birthday. It tells of family births, weddings, deaths, community events, and even the kinds of furniture popular in her day and the kind her family owned. The book has been copied by history buffs and is occasionally used as an authority. In the little composition book is the heading, "Our Antique Treasure." That treasure is a rosewood melodeon, forerunner of the organ; descendant of the squeeze box. The small, 130-year-old bellows-operated instrument resembles a tiny piano. It ranks high among the numerous family treasures Mrs. Fagley has preserved. Another page of "Treasures" in the diminutive history book is the listing of the Brown children — Ruhama and her sister and brothers.

Hearing the knowledgeable, congenial pair talk about their own backgrounds as well as the pedigrees of other Bethel families is akin to reading the "begats." Not many people could tell you where the first three brick houses in this area were located, who lived in them, how much they cost to build, where the brick was fired and how long construction took. Not many folks hereabouts remember Cincinnati Post headlines describing Bethel's "Man Without a Heart," — the story of a corpse who was disinterred soon after burial and whose heart was cut out right in Tate Township Cemetery. They can even tell you who was suspected in the case, which was dropped.

Besides working at the market for "a good many years," where exchanges of history were a natural consequence in conversations with people from literally all over the world, Mrs. Fagley's great-grandfather Fisher, was a congressman who roomed with Abraham Lincoln! Farther back that that, another ancestral grandfather was a chaplain under George Washington. She keeps David Fisher's congressional nameplate on the mantle, and she has many of his silver coin spoons.

Coin spoons, Mr. Fagley explains, were made before there were banks and because the people had no place to spend their silver money, so they just had them pounded into spoons. Later, when there were banks, most people didn't trust them. Mrs. Brown, Ruhama's mother, stored her gold coins in canning jars and sealed them. She kept them in the fruit cellar. When she thought she "had enough," she brought the jars upstairs where the family counted them and found an amassed $5,000 with which they built the present farmhouse!

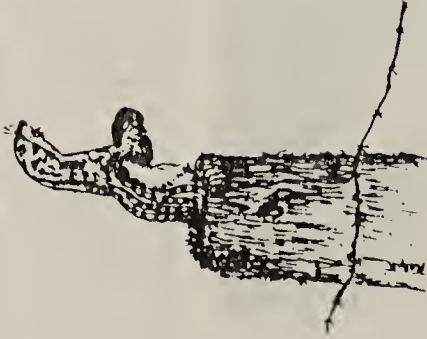

Mr. Fagley's prized possession is a large Blue-willow follow-up design-platter, c1820-40. It came to Bethel over the Erie Canal. He says the story is that his grandfather, a lad of about eight, caught a steelhead which was so big it hung over the ends of the dish. Mrs. Fagley displayed an unbleached bedtick made of linen spun from flax raised in Monroe Township.

On the melodeon sets a framed certificate of award from State Representative Harry Matlott — recognizing Mr. and Mrs. Hermon E. Fagley for their combined years of outstanding dedication and devotion to the educational needs of area youth; providing the example through patient understanding, guidance, training, and leadership. Representative Mussey, who "went to school to" Mr. Fagley, signed it April 10, 1974.

"We are very humble about our lives," Mrs. Fagley said. "The most important thing we believe to have come from our historical research is the saving of the 850 graves in Old Bethel Cemetery, which right up until last summer was in danger of being relocated because the East Fork engineers had scheduled no access road to it. "There's a road there now," the Fagleys pointed out, when they proved to the engineers the significance of the site, where lay the bodies of President U.S. Grant's grandparents and many revolutionary war veterans. "Had it not been for the Grant Sesquicentennial Committee, who worked so hard, we would never have known its history," she added graciously. All their united labors were rewarded when this past Fall, the engineers brought the Fagley's a map showing an access road to the old cemetery and assured them the road and burial ground were to be there "forever."

James B.'s two daughters Amelia Jane and Lizzie (through their guardian, since they were minors) took their step-grandmother to court in order to get her and her second husband to vacate the property they inherited from James at his death.

Hon. David Fisher was a relegious debater,a farmer,a hotel-keeper in Cincinnati and Wilmington,Clinton Co Ohio,and a newspaper publisher in Wilmington.Elected to U.S.Congress about 1845 from Wilmington,hecalled his lawyer son, Wm. Byrn to run his Wilmington hotel and paper.While in Congress,he roomed in a rooming Pouse where the Supreme Court is with Congressman Abe Lincoln,and caught ex-President John Q. Adams when he fell on the house floor with his fatal stroke. We have his desk's nameplate. Evedently he spent some of his last years Omaha

We have a Whig company of Adam Simmons serving "in front of the lines".
 That should get anyone D,A,R, or S.A.R. membership. 3rd Series, Vol 7[?] Penn Archives. Anything beyond that is my thinking out loud. But, thanks to Hatton researchers, and Maxwell Graham, and us, we know errors in James Burke Simmons thinking ,and ,perhaps, DAR applications. Had James Burke Simmons have known the emails posted here in th last week, he could have given us supporting data.

Kim,you're right up the hill from Wm Light Construction 's mining of Big Indian.
 I think his Jacob Light,and your Adam Simmons were neighbors,and went to Methodist preaching together, 1786-90+.But there is something in Jacob Light's life about then.
 He,and wife,spent some years at British held Detroit. Jacob Light would found New Richmond. His brother,Peter Light,lived a mile north of your dad's,on Rt 133,at Clover.
 Why was Jacob Light at Detroit-Winsor,Canada, 1780's? He also was raised in an Episcopalian town in e Pa. Bangor Churchtown,Pa ministered once by Rev Wm Barton.

 Keller=sellers. Teegarden and Sellers?

Here is a list of the early settlers of lower Patterson's Creek when a survey map was made by James Genn in early 1748. This map has not been published nor quoted from as a primary source. Some of the first settlers were no longer there when Fairfax grants were later issued. I have done additional tracing of subsequent lot owners, not presented here. (Note: George Washington was not the surveyor of the lower Patterson's Creek settlement.)

When James Genn arrived to survey these lots in early 1748, 17 log cabins were already built, proven by the survey map. No one knows how long the settlers had been there, but rule-of-thumb says 10-12 years for the earliest ones. The Editor of the West Virginia Advocate and I spent one summer (about 1990) making on-site inspections and photographs for all the lots. We found only 3 present-day houses located on the same sites as the original cabins. We had planned on publishing our findings, but the project was not completed.

I have a copy of a 1749 road petition from the Patterson's Creek settlers to the court in Winchester. This is a valuable list of names, some of whom are not found elsewhere in land records. I created a graphic display of the early history of the Patterson's Creek settlement (not the Manor). I want to donate the display of survey map and historical documents and narrative to either Mineral County or Hampshire, provided they are interested. Here is a sketch on the earliest settlers:

#1 George Parker's house was located on the east side of Patterson's creek, near a small and unnamed stream. The major road between Winchester and Patterson's Creek came directly to Parker's farm. George Washington referred to Parker's farm as a "plantation." Fairfax issued a grant to Parker on Oct. 25, 1748. Lot #1 adjoined the Patterson Creek Manor. The community of Headsville, Mineral County, WV is located on Parker's former land. Parker died in 1757 and his oldest son Benjamin (1722-1804) inherited his estate of 399 acres

#2 John Adam Long was living on this 293-acre farm when Genn made the survey. Fairfax issued the grant on Oct. 2, 1748. Long was scalped by Indians when he was 55 years old. His son Christian Long sold the farm to John Reno in 1761.

#3 Nicholas Reasoner received a Fairfax grant for this 277-acre farm on Oct. 23, 1748. His house was located on the east side of the Creek. The land stayed with the Reasoner family until the early 1800s.

#4 John Rutand (sometimes spelled Ratan) was issued a Fairfax grant on Oct. 25, 1748. 354 acres. Rutand may have been killed by Indians. Abraham Johnson bought Rutand's land and built a mill on it, known today as Reese's Mill.

#5 Abraham Johnson came to Patterson's Creek from New Jersey. Johnson was a trader with Indians and an official in the Ohio Company. His lot was the best one in this settlement, based on running streams and fertile land as well as a great site for protection from Indians. Mr. and Mrs. John M. Kykendall (descendants of Johnson) live in a house that is in the same location as Johnson's original cabin. 309 acres.

Lot #X was located between Lots #5 and #6. This choice lot was created for a close friend of Lord Fairfax, John Greenfield. The plat shows 200 acres with no dwelling house when the survey was made. Greenfield was a County Lt. in the Frederick County militia, with residence in Winchester. He came from Waddington, Scotland. Died in 1768 and left no children. His wife Mary and brother William Greenfield in Scotland were the heirs. Greenfield owned so much land that his executor could not identify and locate all of his properties. There are some interesting stories about some of his lands in Little Cacapon (executor didn't find land later claimed by Largents).

#6 David Thompson Sr. was the first occupant of this lot. Fairfax issued the grant on June 1, 1749. Rectangular lot of 312 acres. Jacob Reasoner bought the farm in 1790.

#7 William Teagard (born on March 15, 1720) was the first occupant of this lot but moved before a grant was issued. William's older brother, Abraham Teagarden (1719-1783) lived also at Patterson's Creek. Abraham married Mary Parker. It is believed that Christopher Bean received a Fairfax grant on June 2, 1749, but died shortly thereafter. Bean was in the process of selling the 321-acre farm to Robert Gregg, but didn't complete the process and the land was forfeited back to Lord Fairfax. In 1773, Col. Elias Poston surveyed the land for John Colson.

#8 Power Hazle built a house on the west side of Patterson's Creek. Hazle's Run was named for him. 320 acres.

#9 This 200-acre lot was vacant when surveyed by Genn and not granted to anyone in 1748-1749. Further research in the Fairfax grants should help identify the first owner.

#10 Nicholas Crist settled on this lot of 167 acres. A Fairfax grant was issued on June 6, 1749. Okey Johnson bought the land in 1774.

#11 Joseph Hamblin first settled on this lot of 289 acres. Fairfax issued a grant on June 7, 1749 to Hamblin (possibly Hamilton?). Hamblin sold 50 acres to Henry Bagley in 1761. Hamblin wanted to give land to his sons but they had migrated far into the wilderness and could not be located. In 1769, he gave his land to Job Pearsall, who died in 1770. In 1771, Fairfax awarded the land to John Pearsall, eldest son of Job.

#12 This lot was occupied by David York when Genn surveyed the land. York sold the 312-acre farm to John Parker, who received a Fairfax grant on June 9, 1749. Parker died in 1760, and his widow Elizabeth married second to Thomas McGuire.

#13 Matthew Rogers Sr. built a house on the east side of the Creek, and received a Fairfax grant for 379 acres on June 10, 1749. George's Road is located on this lot. Rogers died before 1753 and his son Matthew Rogers Jr. inherited the land. Matthew's (Sr) widow married a Mr. Lindsey. Peter Beaver came in 1760 (Beaver's Run named for him).

#14 Jacob Good received a Fairfax grant on June 11, 1749 for 394 acres. His house on the east side of the Creek was built prior to Genn's survey. Good's will was probated in 1780, which named his wife Susannah and children Peter, Abraham, and Isaac Good.

#15 Walter Casper (Casper Walter?) was living on this 238-acre lot when the survey was made. On June 11, 1749, Fairfax issued a grant to Joseph Walter.

#16 Charles Keller first lived on this 300-acre lot. Keller died or was killed by Indians and Fairfax issued a grant to Charles' son John Keller June 1, 1779. A house was shown in the center of the plat, on the east side of the Creek. In 1755, Fort Ashby was built on this same site as a protection from the Indians. In 1787, the town of Frankfort was built on lot #16 (now known as Fort Ashby, WV). The old fort has been restored on its original site.

#17 A McCracken family first lived on this site, but they were not there when the survey was made in 1748. The family was killed by Indians. Philip Martin was the first Fairfax grantee for this lot.

#18 A widow, Catherine Bennett, lived on this lot when the survey was made in 1748. Possibly her husband had been killed by Indians. This 306-acre farm has a nice stream running across the property. The house was located on the west side of Patterson's Creek because a mountain was on the east side. The house was located very close to the bank of the Creek.

#19 A house was located on this lot, but the name of owner was torn off the survey map.

#20 No house was on this lot when the survey was made. This was perhaps the least desirable lot, because the eastern half was a mountain and there was very little fertile land on the west side.

#21 Joseph Robinson received a Fairfax grant on June 11, 1749 for 332 acres. In 1773 Robinson sold part of the lot to William Campbell who held it for 13 years before selling to Balson Shelhorn. Robinson's original log cabin survived until 1979, when it was dismantled and sold. Jerry Sears, current owner, built a house on the original site. This would be a great site for archaeological research.

Juno e-mail printed Sun, 10 Dec 2000 17:35:29 , page 4

#22 Philip Martin, "County of Kent" received a Fairfax grant on June 11, 1749 for 283 acres. Martin was a nephew of Lord Fairfax. Martin leased the land to John Hartley in 1769. This was a choice lot because it bordered the Potomac River, but was known for having absentee landlords. The B&O Railroad was built across this lot. During the 1840s, David Gibson bought lots 20-22 and built a mansion house on #22. It is a beautiful house.

This information was shared because it required no further research on my part to post on this website. I am not actively researching this subject at the present time, but may resume at a later date.

Subject: British advance agents prompt Edward Hatton's will???

Ned and I remember from our NC studies 10-15 years ago that the British, in Charlestown, SC under Cornwallis, sent agents ahead to advise the Loyalists to be prepared to give their troops aid in their march north. And we've heard of British agents in Va. Should we look at Edward Hatton's will with this in mind. Maybe I can do a search of the July and Aug, 1777 York wills, to see if there is an connection.

And the lawyer, Galloway, of Philadelphia, at the very least, got his lands in the names of others early in the war, and thus avoided the confiscation of Loyalists lands to follow. .

Was Edward Hatton's early July will witnessed by the English minister, Daniel Batwell, prompted by advance word the British military was moving from NY to Philadelphia, via the Chesapeake?

Does that prompt the giving of slight properties to his sons. Vestrymen sons. Or was it a normal will of a man who had already provided for his sons? Does the appointment of his executors, including Adam Simmons, but not including his sons, hint at the politics of each?

Moving ahead to the unfair and uneven confiscation of Loyalist lands by the various colonies, where 1/3, 1/2, or all lands of a Loyalist were confiscated. Rev Batwell had members of his Carlisle, Pa church have their vast western lands confiscated. Croghan. T rent? The Penn brothers held manors all over Pa, and though 1 Penn bro was Whig, and 1 Tory, all was confiscated. But in Va, the vast Northern Neck lands of George Washingtons, neighbors, friends, employers, the LOYALIST Fairfax's, land were not confiscated, at last in total.

In Ky, confiscation was of the Loyalist lands of the Ft Pitt friends of the Carlisle traders, Dr John Connoley, and Alexander McKee, and the lands used to fund Transylvania College.

Abstracted from the "Adams County Historical Society Newsletter," February 1991:

"The "Traitor" and "Tory" John WILSON, Jr. of Tyrone and Huntington Townships -- "Dissent has been a human activity since creation. Deviation, from whatever the norm, carries a penalty in society ... During the American Revolutionary War period, many of the aforementioned penalties were commonly used against those favoring the English Crown or even those desiring to remain neutral. During the early years of the war, the colonial authorities (perhaps more correctly, the individual state authorities in power) held a heavy hand over the people in many ways to coerce their continuing allegiance, until (as Dr. Charles H. GLATFELTER has written in one of his books) there was "no place to hide." ... Colonial authorities expected one to accept Continental currency, to swear allegiance to the American cause, and if able bodied, to make oneself available to military service if between 18 and 53 years of age. Those failing to support the American cause had their firearms and accouterments [accessories] confiscated and were subject to a fine for evading military. Permits and licenses were withheld from those not sworn, and usually real estate taxes were doubled. Bills of attainder were passed against those siding with or in the service of England, and real and personal property were confiscated and sold for the benefit of the state.

Apparently north-central York county (of pre-1800 years) was a locale which strongly supported the Crown. The 1886 edition of the "History of Cumberland and Adams Counties" (Adams co. section, p. 291) mentions that in "April, 1777, Rev. Dr. BATWELL, of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Huntington [township] ... preached in favor of aiding the English and conspired to destroy the United States posts and stores at Carlisle, York and Lancaster." More than other Protestant sects, the Episcopalian tended to support the English cause. The church building referred to and its graveyard (only the latter exists today) were but a scant two miles from the John WILSON property. The name of John WILSON is mentioned in the same county history as being the subject of a bill of attainder.

In bills of attainder passed by the Pennsylvania Supreme Executive Council, only two residents of what is now Adams county are named, viz. "John WILSON, late of the Township of Huntington; And James BRACKEN, late of the Township of Tyronne [sic]." The Bill of 1777 further states that they are -- "to render themselves respectively to some or one of the Justices of the Supreme Court, or of the Justices of the Peace of one of the Counties within this State, on or before Thursday the Twenty-fifth day of June next ensuing [1778]; & also abide their legal trial, for having severally adhered to & knowingly & willingly aided & assisted the Enemies of this State, and of the United States of America, by having joined their Armies at Philadelphia, in the County of Philadelphia, within this State, on pain that every one of them stand & be attainted of High Treason, to all intents & purposes, & shall suffer such pains & penalties & undergo all such forfeitures as persons attainted of High Treason ought to do." -- Of either John WILSON or James BRACKEN little is known after they left their homes: with his joining the British in New York in 1777, John WILSON simply disappears, as does his fellow Tory James BRACKEN. Attempts by creditors to recover their money from WILSON's assets ran afoul of the powers of the state, for the court at York decreed that the State has already confiscated his estate under the bill of attainder. But the state did not immediately resell the WILSON property astride the Tyrone-Huntington township line: the President and Executive Council of the Court directed that the house and land of John WILSON, Jr. should remain unsold during the lives of Mary WILSON, widow, and Anne WILSON, widow (of John Jr.) who had some claims of dowry against it. Apparently, some of WILSON's neighbors rallied to the support, if not of the Tory traitor himself, then of the women he had left behind. Confiscator Estates Agent William MITCHELL, executing the bill of attainder in July 1784, lamented that "there is some small part of the same person's [i.e., John WILSON, Jr.'s] personal Estate kept Secret by some of his friends but how to compel them to give it up I am at a loss to know how the Council will oblige."

By 12 October 1792 both Mary and Ann WILSON were deceased, and the state accordingly put the land up for sale. It was sold 22 April 1793 for 291 pounds sterling to William DELAP of Tyrone township ("the brewer"; also former justice of the peace and county commissioner). Thus, after 17 years and 3 weeks, the matter of John WILSON, Jr., traitor, finally came to a close, allowing residents of Huntington and Tyrone townships to enjoy fully the provision of the U. S. Constitution wherein (Art. 3, sect. 9) bills of attainder are expressly forbidden. ..."

It would seem after reading the above that Edward HATTON probably was not too worried about having his property taken away. More than likely, Edward made out his will because of his "being weak in body" as he wrote in his will and he wanted to be the one who designated who should get what from his estate. It seems that Edward, in his will, either gave all his children (or their heirs) something or acknowledged that some of his children had previously received some or all of their share. Why did Edward appoint his son-in-law Adam SIMMONS as executor -- hard to say, but he probably chose Archibald McGREW, in part, for his overall knowledge and ability. Also Edward did have an Inventory for his personal estate (dated 20 Nov 1779) -- and the state or local authorities did not lay claim to that Inventory.

Edward HATTON may or may not have been sympathetic to the English Crown or may or may not have been neutral -- hard to say -- but there is no indication

Although some of the members of Christ (Episcopal) Church may have been sympathetic with England, there is no record of very many Loyalists being in what is now Adams Co., PA.

Subject: 2,000+acre Lake Harsha in 8000 a. East Fork State Park,sw Ohio.

There are many of us here, on-line, who have memory of the area that, 1970-75 became federal Lake Harsha in East Fork State park. S E Batavia twntp, sw Williamsburg twntp, nw Tate twntp [Bethel], and a tiny bit of Monroe twntp went into the lake-park.

This area was mostly settled by people from Atlantic Co, NJ and s e Princeton, NJ, though there were exceptions from Washington Co, sw Pa, Fayette Co, Ky etc. . Mostly Methodist. . But, by 1970, many of the farms were no longer owned by original families.

No villages, but "neighborhoods" disappeared. If you look at a modern map, you see the lake shaped roughly like an hour-glass. The hamlet of Elk Lick was under the western bulge. Twin Bridges under the eastern bulge. Anti-Bantam at the park's edge south of Twin Bridges. Bantam south of Elk Lick. Concord east of Twin Bridges. Afton north of Elk Lick. Green Brier at the north end of the dam. Mt Holly not far south east of the dam. Neighborhoods. Elk Lick once had Rev John Collins and his bro-in-law, James Blackman's grist and saw mills. In the narrow place between bulges was Isaac Higbee's and Cornelius McCollum's mill. At Macedonia, on the s e corner of the lake were once 3 mills owned by John Denham, Walter Burke, Timothy Sprague, -Deel, et al, and on the n e edge of the park was tunnel mills. Methodist churchs of Old Bethel, Green Brier, and Concord, were in, or at the park's edge [cemeteries, at least, survive. I think a 4th was in the park's campground.

Salt was made at at least 2 licks-by the Jersey men at Elk Lick, and by Waits, n of Concord church. At least Bantam and Concod had post offices. Bridges would be torn down at Elk Lick, Twin Bridges[2], Macedonia, Goggle Eye, and Tunnel Mills 1973-74. The latter 3 would not have been under water at normal lake depth.

Many very early buildings were torn down, in both the lake, and the park area, 1970-75. Pictures were published in local papers of many of them, and 'Elk Lick' house was moved, board by board, to Sharon Woods Parks village, ne Cincinnati.

Hermit John Allen had gold mines in a couple locations.

I read about 1972, of a Batavia boy finding thousands of Indian artifacts in the Elk Lick bottoms... He must have found the lick.

From the 1870 and 1891 atlases, I can tell who owned which farm then. From the 1826 tax lists, I can locate maybe 1/2 the owners then. And, I know, roughly, the original 1798-1803-1806 owners. And several of us on-line can remember many of the 1950-70 owners of lands in the lake-park area. Still know some of them. By that time, some of the farms along the creek were owned by Cincinnati people for vacation homes.

I started out to write an article about the people, but must tackle that later. I should mention that on the north side of the lake, a new highway, and older RR led to the building of a huge FORD transmission plant - now with new owners. .

Subject: Old Bethel's Wm Jeffers Martha Doughty row LEEDS

I proposed, colletively, that we might guess those buried in the 10-15 spaces in a row at old Bethel with only Martha, consort of Richard Doughty, and Wm Jeffers having tombstones, and Mrs Wm Jeffers seems one.

Let's say another was Martha, consort of 'Robert ' Doughty. 1814, or before tombstoe could be purchased. Martha Leeds Doughty. And if it seems logical that the row held 2 Martha's, one of Richard, and one of Robert Doughty, how about Martha, d 1814's parents. Robert and Margaret Leeds Leeds, from 180-4-05 living less than a mile away. Robert, b july 7, 1757 d March 1835 and his wife, Margaret Leeds Leeds, b abt 1765 m NJ 1784.

Subject: Re: Simpson and Pres-Gen U Simpson Grant

Today, my w Bethel, Ohio hike took me where I was in the northern part of the farm where Jesse Root Grant m Hannah Simpson in 1821. I could see, in the distance, the site where the old brick Thomas Page had sold John Simpson, Jr had been located. Thomas Page then started a tannery at Pt Pleasant, Oh, on the Ohio, where, 1822, Hannah Simpson Grant and Jesse Root Grant had the future Pres-Gen US GRANT.

Said house burned with multiple loss of life, 1900 era. Ohio Rt 125, then s Sugartree Rd, 3/4 mile. I have a picture of the house, someplace 3 days ago, I saw the Simpson tombstones in Old Bethel churchyard, a mile north of Bantam, Oh in East Fork State Park.

[another son of Samuel was my Dad's uncle, Capt Robert Belville Simpson, d Walnut Hills, Cincinnati.

Thomas Page had 400 acres from 1805. He built the neighborhood's 1st, or 2nd brick and sold the whole to the John Simpson's [Jr] in 1817 era. I know the site of a 2nd, very old, cabin and well on the property. Simpson had a Griffith son-in-law with him, and another dau m [James?] Ross.

Neshaminy Presbyterian, in s e Bucks Co, Pa had been a church of Simpson, Jr. John Simpson, Sr had attended one near Harrisburg, Pa ministered by Rev Elder.

Terr Gov Samuel Medary wrote of attending elementary school with Hannah Simpson Grant, in s e Pa . My memory is that it was a Quaker school, though both Medary and Simpson had Nesaminy Presbyterian ties. But they lived in the Gwynedd-North Wales, Pa colony across the county line south. 1698, Gwynedd, North Wales was settled, and many of the Welsh became quaker. Medary had a Welsh Harris mother. John Simpson, Jr had a Welsh Roberts tie, plus the Griffith's were Welsh- 2 Simpson siblings m 2 Griffith's.

Prof and US GRANT expert John Simon tells me of Hannah Simpson Grant being so quiet. I think she was educated as a Quaker-for sure, she was raised amid nw Philadelphia suburbs Quakers.

Ks-Mn Territory Gov Samuel Medary wrote of attending Quaker school with Hannah. A power in Ohio State politics, and a Columbus, Ohio newspaperman, this childhood friend of Hannah's was jailed in the war by Gen Grant for his Peace Democrat newspaper writings. 1825, Sam Medary had stopped his migration west at Bethel, Ohio because of the Simpson's. I'm from his sister, Mary Medary Iden, who stopped at Bethel, in 1834, after getting a Quaker certificate of removal from n Wash DC in Md Quakers.

Hannah Grant's nephew m a Fagley

Hannah Grant's bro-in-law, Oliver Grant m a Medary, with a Bucks Co Quaker mom.

But, the Simpson farm adjoins not my Dad's Fagley's, but my Mom's Justice-ELY-Brown farm. I was raised in the Bantam Presbyterian, 1940's because, 1865, Samuel Simpson converted my Mom's Justice's and Ely's from the Methodist Old Bethel. But all are buried at Old Bethel. Which is not, and is 5 miles west of the Methodist church in Bethel who had Jesse Root Grant as leader.

A block east of the latter was an Underground RRer Methodist. Actually, on a corner of the 400 acres of John Simpson was a 2nd Underground RRer church. Which makes one think. The Grant's were so-so on slavery, but the Simpson's? A farm cut from the 400 acres of Page-Simpson was Underground RRer Rev Isaac Holmes Brown's.

Samuel Simpson's son, Capt Robert Belville Simpson married a sister of a proven Underground RRer., Capt Will Fagley. When a Presbyterian church became available at Nicholasville, the Simpson's attended it. And the Presbyterian's were anti-slavery. Was Samuel Simpson, or son, guilty of breaking the Federal law and helping slaves escape? JOHN SIMON? My Justice's, on the 1st farm north, named a son, HENRY CLAY, so not them

Subject: Re: Simpson and Pres-Gen U Simpson Grant

Am really interested in the Catherine Feagin. You say she was born in Virginia. I believe there are 2 Feagin/Fegan families but the one of Daniel Feagin of Loudon co. VA is the one I am researching. This Daniel Feagin was found with a William Lee in Loudon Co.

In the 1778 Loudon County Taxables Tithables for Shelburn Parish taken by Thomas Lewis, in 1775, Daniel Feagin, William Lee, John Randal listed together with Negro Bobb.

Daniel Feagin, a native of Loudon married Violet Combs, d/o Joseph Combs on 3 Feb 1763 (67). He was a lieutenant in Virginia line 1776 at Brandywine where he was commissioned Captain and served until 1783. He removed to Kenton's Station in KY in 1784 and by 1802 had moved across the Ohio river to Paint Creek, Fayette Co., OH. He died of the cold plague on a visit to Georgetown. His wife, Lett, was 75 years old in 1815 and rode 60 miles from their home to Georgetown. She died in 1842. Daniel and Lett had Fielding b. 1773, Daniel b. 1774, Elizabeth b. 1775, Jane b. 1779, Susannah b. 1780 m. Edward Thompson in 1803, Frances b. 1781, Nancy b. 1782, Edward b. 1785, John b. 1792, Joseph b. 1793 and Willis b. 1795 Ref: Mike Sayers, Puoin Bay OH 43456.

Daniel Feagin received a Northern Neck grant (NNG, Gray p. 73 A-14, Daniel Feagin of Stafford Co. 317 A on Elk Run in sd. Co. Wrnt. 26 Nov last, Surv. by Tho's Hooper 8 Dec last, adj. Wm. These books are indexed-very poorly. Maybe 10-20% of names.
 From memory- Richard Westcoat was maybe the most important man in ,now,Atlantic Co, in the REV WAR and past era.
 He was connected 1st to Batsto furnace,and to Pleasant Mills
 He was the owner of Privateers sailing from the Mullica.
 He then moved to Mays Landing-Weymouth Furnace
 He had family connections to Joseph Ball,1776 iron master at Batsto,and to Ball's iron master kinsmen,the Richards.

Hi Hermon,

9 below, Suzanna Delano is my conection with both Pres. Grant and Pres. FDR. My grandmother Fletcher was May Delano. I have the information upstairs somewhere making the connnections. I think that mom is an eighth cousin of FDR. She never knew this. I received the info. after her death in 1965.
